MORE DRASTIC STEPS BY FRANCE

Unoccupied Area Of Germany Will Not Be Sent Coal

Will Stop Export of Steel And Iron Also if Germany Fails to Come to Terms.

Industrial isolation of the Ruhr from unoccupied Germany began today by the cutting off of coal and coke shipments may be carried further if Germany fails to come to terms. An interdiction will be put on exports of iron, steel and other manufacturers in that case a Dusseldorf despatch quotes the French as saying. With the tightening of the industrial cordon about the valley, the production of coal continues on a declining scale

The railway strike is effective throughout the valley and there is a growing shortage of cars threatening enforced suspension of the mines.

The railway strike likewise is effective outside the Ruhr at Cologne and Mayence. The few through trains being run in the Rhineland are operated by the French In Germany the government has cancelled operation of the numerous express trains to economize on coal Increasing tension between the Essen population and the occupational troops is reported In Essen in dother Ruhr towns reports that France and England had broken at Lausanne over the Near East caused premature jubilation

Hugo Stinnes, the German industrial leader, is visiting the Ruhr for the first time since the occupation, a Mulheim despatch announces He disregarded his colleagues advice to remain outside the area.

(By The Associated Press)

DUSSELDORFF Feb 1.—The order prohibiting the export of coal from the Ruhr to unoccupied Germany has been enforced. There has been no reaction from the Germans so far. The French announced that should Germany fail to come to terms the interdiction on exports will be extended to steel and iron as well as other manufactured articles.

Tell President You Are Sorry's He's Sick And Get Ton of Coal

NEW YORK Feb 1.—Some persons may not be able to obtain coal but Dr Walker B. Allen of Keyport, N J, has learned how Consequently the President of the United States is personally seeing that the Allen coal bin is filled

A week ago, when the Allen cellar was as empty as a monk's cell, the good doctor had an inspiration. He telegraphed to the White House his condolences because of the President's and Mrs Harding's illness He said he had a fellow-feeling, as his wife had been an invalid eight years

Dr. Allen added that his coal bin was empty and could the President help a fellow fill it?

The President could—and did The appeal was forwarded to Fuel Administrator Wadleigh and yesterday the diplomatic doctor was informed by Mr. Wadleigh's office that an immediate shipment of coal was being made to Matawan, near Keyport Dr Allen believes in saying it with flowery words.

Lloyd George's Pep Amuses Spaniards

MADRID, Jan. 31.—The Spanish public are following with much interest the life that Mr. Lloyd George is leading while in this country. They marvel at his display of activity while on a rest.

He rises at 8 a. m., does a lot of writing with his secretaries, and takes long walks that completely tire out the Spanish police whose duty it is to protect him. At other times he rides on horseback or in a motor car.

He has made use of the warship that the Spanish government placed at his disposal to visit Spanish Morocco, and he has requested the British ambassador in Madrid to thank the government for the constant courtesies of the authorities.

It amuses the Spanish public to hear that Mr Lloyd George has apparently been called upon to deny that he has attended a bull fight, and the remark attributed to him while gazing across the Straits, "How near Tangier is to Spain!" appears at the head of a column in one newspaper and printed in large type as if fraught with great international import.

Rat Campaign In County Begins

(W. M PERRY.)

The Pittsylvania county anti-rat campaign is in full swing this week. Many farmers are taking advantage of the opportunity to rid their premises of the destructive rodents. For the convenience of the public, a quantity of barium carbonate has been placed at the following points for distribution: Rondo, Mineville, Sandy River, Callands, Dry Fork, Chestnut Level, Spring Garden, Climax, Keeling, Kentuck, Ringgold, Blairs, Chatham Pharmacy, Happers' Scott Chatham Pharmacy, Whittles, Saunders (near Schoolfield), Whittles, Teshes, Bright, Gretna Pharmacy, Sycamore, Hurt, Level Run, Straightstone, Renan, Chalk Level, Priceville, Hill Grove, Java, Shockoe, Pickaway, Design, Bachelors Hall, Brosville, Whitmell, Richardsons (Coats), Piney Fork, Natol.

Moss Redd Held For Grand Jury

(Special to The Bee)

MARTINSVILLE, Va., Feb 1.—Moss Redd is being held here for the Henry county grand jury having been given a preliminary hearing on the charge of assaulting Ballard Bowles of Ridgeway, Henry county, several days ago and taking his watch and $100 in money. Ben Redd and Emory Coan, negroes, who also were arrested in connection with the assault, were able to establish alibis and have been discharged from custody.

Francis Mitchell, a colored woman, gave the most incriminating testimony. She said that Redd boarded the train at Ridgeway not long after the hour of the assault on Mr. Bowles who was left stunned in the road She said that the negro took off his shoes and pulled out three twenty-dollar bills which he showed her, with the remark that when he got ready for money he could 'knock 'em down and take it."

Youthful Heiress Succeeds In Second Elopement Effort

BALTIMORE, Jan 31.—Miss Carolyne Shuster, 19-year-old daughter of W. Morgan Shuster, president of the Century Company of New York, and William Morris, son of a Glasgow (Ky.) merchant, whose attempted elopement last September was frustrated, were married yesterday in Rockville, Md

This was made known today by Mr. and Mrs. Morris, who are registered at a local hotel They announced their intention of leaving shortly for Florida, where they will spend several weeks of their honeymoon.

Morris, who is 21 years old, came from Florida last Friday and met Miss Shuster in Washington yesterday From there they motored to Rockville, where they were married. After the ceremony they registered at a hotel here and later left the hotel, according to the clerk, with an elderly man, for another hotel.

According to the young couple, they attempted to elope from Glasgow, Ky., last September 7. At that time Miss Shuster, with br emother, was visiting Mrs. H. C. Trigg, her grandmother, during the summer months. They had intended to be married at Jeffersonville, Ind., but an accident to their automobile at Goodnight, Ky., prevented their doing so.

AFTERNOON TEA IS OFFICIALLY RECOGNIZED

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The afternoon cup of tea, to which pleasant habit many Americans fall victim after a short sojourn in England, has been eulogized in a report issued by the Industrial Fatigue Research Board.

Investigation showed that where a long afternoon of five hours was interrupted by a tea interval, even if for ten minutes only, the regularity of the work was particularly noticeable. The report quotes workers as declaring: "We can face with equanimity, and even enthusiasm, a period of two hours with the prospect of a rest, but to look forward to four or five hours unbroken work dampens the enthusiasm of even an ardent worker."

FUNERAL OF HOWARD E. SCARCE

The funeral of Howard A. Scarce, the only son of Mr. and Mrs J. T. Scarce, was conducted Tuesday afternoon by Rev. J. R. Wilson.

Besides his father and mother he leaves five sisters: Mrs. Eugene Winn, of Vance, Va.; Mrs Lonnie Rouz, Ola, Nellie and Geraldine Scarce, of Danville.

He was laid to rest in the family burying ground near Whitmell, Va.

—Miss Rosa L. Raines, of Delhi, New York, is visiting her sister, Mrs T. A. Fox.

ANGEL OF SIBERIA

Diocesan Council To Adjourn Today

Final Business Sessions Being Held With Some of the Delegates Already Leaving—Rev. Dr. Carter Heard Last Night

Many of the delegates who have been attending the annual session of the Council of the Diocese of Southern Virginia were leaving today feeling that all major matters of importance have been dealt with since the council met last Tuesday morning The council will come to a close this evening at half past five o'clock. Bishop B. D. Tucker and Bishop Coadjutor A. C Thomson will return to their homes tonight

Today's sessions are of largely routine nature and for the purpose of hearing reports of the regular and the special committees. These were taken up in their proper turn and were discussed and adopted. The closing session will be taken up with hearing reports on the condition of the diocesan institutions and organizations these including the Woman's Auxiliary the Theological Seminary at Alexandria, the Bishop Payne Divinity school, Chatham Episcopal Institute, St. Paul's school for colored boys and girls at Lawrenceville and others. The final report of the finance committee will be heard this afternoon and the agenda will be wiped clear of outstanding business before the final Doxology is sung and the delegates depart for their homes to meet at St Andrew's church, Norfolk, next year.

Next years session is expected to see final disposition made of the question of granting a larger voice in the conduct of diocesan affairs by the colored clergy. That matter was the subject of extended discussion yesterday but final action was deferred and the resolution was re-committed to a special body which will make a report next year. In the opinion of some churchmen the time is not far distant when a suffragan bishop for the colored clergy will be elected and the colored parishes conducted by the colored bishop who would be answerable to the bishop of the diocese.

ADD LEAD DIOCESAN COUNCIL.

By dint of hard work the Council at 2 o'clock this afternoon was almost ready for adjournment, although the schedule of the program called for adjournment at 5 o'clock. At that time a recess for lunch had not been taken and it was thought probable that the program of the council would be finished up in the one session.

The session was taken up with reports of the regular committees and discussion and explanation of these reports. Probably the two most important reports were those on the state of the Church and the report of the Woman's Auxiliary.

This report showed that the Diocese of Southern Virginia showed a healthy growth and development for the past year, all of the various elements of the Church having worked together in harmony, thus accomplishing more than ever before in the history of the Church. A part of the report was taken up with a serious discussion of the problems and responsibilities of the Church and the plans for the coming year.

The report of the Woman's Auxiliary was the best that has ever been presented to the Council and the women of the Diocese were commended in no uncertain terms by Bishop Tucker for their faithful and untiring work. The total disbursements of the year were $4,650.84. This included a purse to Bishop and Mrs Tucker to aid them in their trip to the Far East. The report also outlined a budget and plans for next year which, if carried out, will materially increase the scope of the work

At time of going to press the report of the finance committee was being read and discussed.

Following is miscellaneous business, next to last in the order of business Then comes reading of the minutes and adjournment.

Parishes in the diocese of Southern Virginia which fail to meet their diocesan assessment within one year will forfeit their right to lay representation in the Council as result of an amendment to the Constitution of the church which was adopted yesterday evening after protracted debate The canon was advocated by Dr. H. H. Covington, of Norfolk and was adopted, but not until clerical delegates and some lay delegates, representing struggling parishes, had opposed the measure.

This, and the perhaps more animated debate which followed the introduction of a resolution at the morning session the terms of which would have granted to the colored clergy equal rights with the white clergy on the Council floor were the salient points of the Council's sessions yesterday.

Last night Bishop Harry St. George Tucker, of Kyoto, son of Bishop B D

Liquor Fleet Lifts Anchor As Prices Drop

NEW YORK Jan. 31.—Due to a glut in the liquor market and the slashing of prices the rum fleet which has been operating off the Jersey coast is fast breaking up, John D. Appleby, prohibition zone chief for New York and New Jersey, said tonight. "The greater part of the rum fleet has moved off to the New England coast in the vicinity of Boston, Newport, Nantucket and Narragansett Pier," said Appleby.

"The rum runners can get better prices off the New England coast and will not be watched so closely. There is one steamship off the Jersey coast we are watching closely, however. I have been told that she has 33 000 cases of liquor on board The arrival of this steamship also induced the smaller vessels to seek new locations."

One Killed In Rear-End Crash On Seaboard Line

(By The Associated Press)

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb 1.—One person was killed and five slightly hurt today when Seaboard train No. 1 from New York to Jacksonville, crashed into the rear of train No. 201 near Hazeod, Va according to announcement by officials here. J. M. Fields, of Raleigh, engineer of No. 1 was killed and his fireman, T. E Seitz, injured slightly The others hurt were passengers but by flying glass it was said. The cause of the wreck appeared to be due to mishandling of the block at La Crosse by the telegraph operator, officials stated, but it was added that the probe had not been completed. Train No. 201 was going from Washington to Hamlet, N. C.

Negro Dies Of Wound; Wife Is Held For Murder

Lloyd Oden, colored, died yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the Providence hospital from a gunshot wound inflicted Sunday morning by his wife, Julia, following a quarrel which started the night before. The negress who has been in jail since the shooting, is now being held on a charge of murder. The killing is said to have been cold-blooded in some respects as the woman is alleged to have shot her husband as he was leaving the house to keep from hearing her quarrel. The shooting occurred on the porch of their home near the city, the load of shot entering Oden's back on the left side, penetrating the lung.

Farmers Warehouse Will Close; Planters Will Remain Open

Through a confusion in the names of Farmers and Planters warehouse in yesterday's issue of The Bee an erroneous impression was caused which The Bee hastens to correct. In the article it was said that the Co-Operative Marketing association was closing down Planter's warehouse for the rest of the season instead of stating that it was Farmers warehouse which was being closed. While correct reference was made to Farmers warehouse in one point of the article it was misleading

Planters warehouse which is controlled by the Danville Warehouse company, has no intention of closing down and C B Davis, its manager who has been in the auction business here for many years will continue the operation of the house indefinitely. In the conflict which has developed over the two systems of selling tobacco the verbal report was spread some time ago by irresponsible persons that Planter's might close and the error which occurred in yesterday's paper was doubly unfortunate in that connection.

"You can tell the farmers for me," Mr Davis said today "that Planters warehouse will continue to sell tobacco at auction and it will certainly not be closed."

Farmers warehouse which is also on Union street has been closed by the Co-Operative organization as a delivery point in order to release the clerical attaches for service at other points where the association has delivery points, according to R. N. Williams, manager of warehouses

Acceptance Is Of Full Terms

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Feb 1.—It is authoritatively stated that the officials of the British government consider the American terms for funding the British war debt to the United States to have been completely accepted by yesterday's action of the cabinet While the words 'in principle' were used in informing both the American Ambassador in London and the British Ambassador in Washington of the cabinet action this terminology it is explained merely permits the British ambassador to continue the unimportant details of negotiations

Lacking final information on this point officials declined to indicate the amount of payments which the 3 and 3 1-2 per cent interest rates with the one-half of one per cent. amortization payment would bring to the U S annually in retirement of the British obligations

Various estimates of the annual payments ranged from $135,000,000 to more than $200.000.000 The interest rate of 3 per cent effective for ten years would on its face mean a payment of about $135.000.000 a year but other phases of the program may operate to change this.

Bootleg Rum Kills 307 in One Month Doubling All Records

PHILADELPHIA, Jan 31.—The largest number of sudden deaths ever reported by the Coroner here for one month has been recorded for this January. In the first twenty-nine days 659 persons were killed or fell dead The figure is about double that of last January.

Of these deaths 307 are attributed by Coroners Detective Frank Paul directly or indirectly to moonshine liquor by bootleggers. About 100 were laid directly to acute alcoholism and 207 recorded as due to 'heart disease,' 'uremia' and various lung diseases were investigated by Detective Paul and found to have been caused by excessive drinking.

Detective Paul, who has made a special study of causes of sudden deaths, said the great bulk of moonshine liquor sold by bootleggers was lethal death

"I don't care what kind of bottles the stuff may be in or what labels disguise it," said Mr Paul, "there is very little real whisky sold by any one today

"The man or woman who keeps drinking the stuff sold by bootch peddlers is bargaining for nothing but certain death."

Included in the 659 are thirty-nine suicides, the largest number ever reported in a month. Thirty persons were killed by automobiles and eleven slain.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Funeral services for Henry Clews, financier, who died yesterday in his 83rd year will be conducted Saturday.

Burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery.

BANDITS IN MEXICO USE KU KLUX GARB

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 1.—The dress of the Ku Klux Klan was copied by four hold-up men who, on a recent Sunday afternoon, attacked various parties of automobiles driving out to visit the famous Cacahuamilpa caves in the state of Morelos. It was on this road that the A. Bruce Bielaski party was held up last June, resulting in the kidnapping of the former head of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice of the United States.

The attackers were thorough in their work, even helping themselves to cigarettes and matches, but withal they were so genial and courteous that one woman victim said later she rather enjoyed the experience. The men spoke English and called attention to the fact that they wore Ku Klux regalia.

Help Sent To Burning Ship

Steamer Buttonwood Afire in Lynhaven Roads Is Destined to Be Total Loss.

(By The Associated Press)

NORFOLK, Feb. 1—All tugs having fire fighting equipment are being asked by the Naval authorities to go to the assistance of the steamer Buttonwood, afire in Lynhaven Roads since midnight last night and apparently destined to be a total loss

The coast guard cutter Manning which went to the assistance of the steamer at 3 a m. today reported at 8 o'clock that the fire then was not under control and that help was needed The steamer's crew, the Manning reported had taken to the small boats several hours before The whereabouts of the 25 members of the crew of the ship was not known this morning but coast guards said they may have landed at some point along the shore where they could not communicate with employers

Carolina Road Bill Has Passed

(By The Associated Press)

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 1.—The Bowie bill to provide a railway through Watauga, asked by Allegheny county after investigation by a special commission and carrying an appropriation for engineering survey was introduced in the House today and the Broughton Bill for investigation of the State Tuberculosis Sanitarium by a joint committee was passed today

The general roads bill authorizing a fifteen million dollar bond issue to continue the state programme of road construction and increasing the motor fuel tax from one to three cents per gallon today, passed its final Senate reading. Senators H. B Parker of Wayne and C P Harris, of Kranklin, voted in the negative.

The bill has passed the House and now goes to the Governor Governor Morrison's ship line bill was set for considefation next Wednesday in the Senate. A bill to declare void all marriages hereafter contracted by persons one of whom should be less than 16 years of age was introduced in the Senate by Sen Varser and two measures sponsored by the American Legion to prevent commercialization of the emblem of the Legion and the wearing of it by non-members and to provide for the burial of indigent veterans of the World War, were introduced by Senator Emmitt Bellamy.

Police Capture Man With Liquor

Police officers had a lively chase with a man driving a horse and buggy last night and finally caught him, and he now awaits a hearing on a Mapp act violation. The man is W. H. Rickman and is charged with having a quart fruit jar about half full of corn whisky

Last night Sergeant H. T. Haraway and Patrolmen R A Adams and L O Belton went to a point near the sanitorium to await an automobile they suspecter of carrying whisky. Finally the machine approached from a side road It was stopped and a search made but no whisky was found. In the meantime, the horse and buggy passed and the officers noticed that the driver was nervous over something and seemed to be in a great hurry After searching the auto they gave chase to the smaller vehicle. They finally caught it near New Design Just before he stopped the driver threw a jar from the buggy. It did not break and the officers picked it up as evidence and took charge of Rickman and his horse and buggy.

Sold His Cars At $50 Per Throw

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—A grand jury indictment was returned today against Robert L. Vannoy, of North Carolina on a charge of having impersonated a member of the House of Representatives. He is alleged to have sent letters to several rural letter carriers in southern states representing himself as a member of the lower branch and as serving on the committee on postoffices, and which he said the government had a batch of automobiles for sale to carriers for $50 each. A number of responses with money enclosed are said to have been received by him

Vannoy was indicted several months ago on a charge of using the mails to defraud, growing out of the same transaction.

Debt Funding Commission Is Called To Meet

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—Secretary Mellon, chairman of the American Funding Commission, called a meeting of the commission for this afternoon to make plans for presenting to Congress the British-American agreement.

The call for the meeting followed official notification of the state department by the British embassy that the British cabinet had acted favorably on the America plan Details of the British action are expected through diplomatic channels today and upon their completeness depends how far the commission can go in outlining the next move.

Some reports received here indicated it was said that the British acceptance which was reported by Ambassador Harvey 'in principle' was on a basis would not materially change minor details of the plan as suggested by the American commission.

Didn't Elope, Really; Just Got Married

NEW YORK, Jan 31—It was not an elopement—that is, not a 24-karat, acid test-proof elopement. They simply sauntered off he in a business suit and she in a little tailored thing, and were married at the Church of St. Francis Xavier, Brooklyn.

They were Miss Geraldine Becker, a prominent girl of Brooklyn, and Herbert Redmond, son of James W. Redmond of No. 155 Underhill avenue, Brooklyn, a lawyer Miss Becker is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Becker of No 69 Eighth avenue and a grand niece of James Shevin, a leader of political and civic life in Brooklyn for a couple of generations. She is a Packer Institute girl.

It was Saturday afternoon and the couple went with Miss Marion Hall of East Orange and Thomas Smith of Carroll street, Brooklyn Then they telephoned their homes they were spending the night with friends and said nothing about the wedding. Monday afternoon they appeared at the home of the bride and told of their marriage.

"Everybody, expected it, anyhow, because they were courting a couple of years," said Miss Edna Redmond, sister of the bridegroom, yesterday. "They just wanted to avoid the fuss of a large wedding. Every one is quite satisfied.

Good Morning Judge!

A traffic accident which occurred yesterday on North Union street was aired in the police court this morning and resulted in a fine of twenty-six dollars and costs being imposed on James Howard, colored, who was driving a large truck which ran into a Chevrolet machine belonging to and driven by M. M. Robinson. No personal injuries were sustained in the accident.

The evidence revealed that the large tobacco truck was going north and made a sudden turn to enter High street when it crashed into the Chevrolet. It was brought out that Howard was looking back at the time of the accident. He admitted this, but says he was trying to see if another car was behind him.

Fines of eleven dollars and costs were imposed on Catherine Smith, Russell Blackwell and Mary Moore, colored, on charges of gambling.

Dick Ray drew a fine of twenty-six dollars and costs on a drunk and disorderly conduct charge. A charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated was dismissed, after the accused had produced witnesses to show that he was not the driver of the machine

E. R. James and Ernest Rawlins did not answer to their names when cases against them for running their machine over the fire hose yesterday, were called.

CHANGES HER NAME TO HELP PUPILS

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 1—Declaring that her pupils were unable to pronounce her name correctly, Mrs. Catherine Schnepfe, a teacher in the public schools, filed a petition in Circuit court yesterday asking permission to change it to Catherine Diggs, which was her name before she was married.

"The children did pretty well with it, all things considered," said Mrs. Schnepfe last night in discussing her action.

It's Your Loss Not the Paper's If You Are Not Reading THE MARRIAGE FLAW By Roy Vickers, the New Daily Serial In The Register

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

THIS "STRAD" MADE IN JAPAN

The latest Stradivarius story comes from South Boston and puts to shame all other interesting tales of the "discovery" of violins made by the Italian of the seventeenth century. With the list of "genuine" Cremona violins steadily swelling in this section of the country (notwithstanding the record of not more than 20 authentic Stradivarius violins in the whole world), a writer from the Halifax town, who forgot to sign his name, says that there has been found in South Boston a violin bearing the following inscription:

"Antonius Stradivarius Cremonensis, Faciebat Anno 1734."

And then, (weep) not students of musical lore)

"Made in Japan."

"It seems peculiar" says the harbinger of news from Halifax, "that this man could make as many violins in Cremona that the dates show for and still had time to go to Japan and make them there. Perhaps that was a branch office. This violin is of red color and is made up pretty good but is not in a condition to play now."

Parishes Must Meet Assessment Or Forfeit Right

Tucker, who is presiding was to have made an address. The senior bishop explained to the congregation that his son had found it impossible to get to Danville owing to a conflicting engagement. It developed upon enquiry that Bishop Tucker understood that the Council session would take place last week and the other engagement in Richmond for this week was made and could not be broken.

The Council will conclude its labors this afternoon. The remaining two sessions will be largely taken up with routine matters and the Council will adjourn to meet next year at St. Andrews church in Norfolk.

The discussion over the rights of negro clergymen in the diocese was brought up automatically yesterday morning. A year ago a resolution looking to extending larger privileges to the colored ministers was introduced and it came up this year for final reading and action. After protracted debate which developed considerable division of opinion the Council recommitted the resolution and a special committee will reconsider it and make a report next session. The colored clergy desire an equal voice on church matters. Three colored clergymen who were ministers in the year 1889 are members of the council. The archdeacon for colored work and two additional clergymen and two laymen constitute the present representation in the Council's affairs.

During an emotional appeal made by one of the colored delegates he was overcome and collapsed in his pew being later revived.

The advocacy by Dr. Covington of what was considered a drastic piece of legislation by some—the elimination of lay delegates from such parishes as fail to meet their assessments-produced animated discussion. Rev. E. W. Mellichampe of Halifax made a spirited reply to Dr. Covington who is a member of the finance committee which devised the plan and was applauded for his courageous exposition of the side of the question from the viewpoint of the country parish. Mr. Mellichampe said that in the committee appointments the rural clergy are not considered and he made a plea for greater consideration along this line. Rev. Chiswell Dabney of Chatham was another minister who opposed the plan. Mr. Easley of Halifax, a lay delegate, thought the legislation too harsh and he offered, as a substitute, that on action be taken against such parishes until they have been given a year to make good their payments. The original motion prevailed. Dr. F. C. Steinmetz, rector of Christ Church, Norfolk, during the afternoon session advocated the adoption of a canon which would provide rotative appointments to the vestry. His plan was that three or four members of every vestry be eliminated automatically after a given term of service, this rendering it necessary each year to elect as many new vestrymen as the number passing out of office and thus infusing new blood into the church. Several opposed the plan. One lay delegate described such a canon as striking at the fundamentals of the church and destroying its democracy. Dr. Steinmetz was insistent, however, and it was intimated that there was a compelling reason for Dr. Steinmetz's urgent advocacy of it. The Norfolk minister spoke of cliques which 'run' churches and he said that the proposed canon would eliminate this. There would, he said, be no 'machine run' churches and no 'bosses possible if such a plan were adopted. Chiding those who failed to recognize the urgency of its passage he told the clerical delegates that their 'troubles' would come sooner or later. "Give this baby a piece of candy and let it suck itself to prosperity" Dr. Steinmetz said after speaking of the spirit of unrest which is finding its way to the churches of the country. On the vote the motion failed to carry.

Rev. E. R. Carter, D. D., of Grace Church Petersburg, and recognized as a leader of thought in the diocese was the principal speaker last night before a large audience at Epiphany church. His theme was Religious Education. He was followed by Archdeacon J. S. Russell, colored, who spoke of his trip last year to Liberia where he described the progress of the Christian movement. Archdeacon Russell made the interesting observation that before many years Liberia would be turned over to the church a Christianized country and that at the present rate of progress Africa, long referred to as the dark continent would be a Christian country within fifty years.

Bishop Coadjutor A. C. Thomson introduced Dr. Carter speaking of religious education as the foundation of divine truth and emphasising its growing importance in spiritual endeavor. A handsome tribute was paid by the bishop to the Petersburg minister who is president of the Diocesan Board of Religious education and who was described as being widely known without the confines of this diocese.

Dr. Carter who spoke for nearly forty minutes traced the development of religious education from the primitive form of Sunday scholarship and defined the modern conceptions of what religious training stands for and what it hopes to do. The board of which he is president was founded in Richmond in 1919 when four principles were laid down, the necessity of promoting a unitary process, the necessity of giving sound and wholesome religious instruction as contrasted with 'giddy' information, the development of technical skill and personality and the production of leaders in the church. He elaborated in a thoughtful discussion these principles and showed in the careful analysis of his theme the urgent necessity of an united effort on the part of the diocese in promoting religious education which is not, under the new standards, confined to Sunday school work but is carried out in week days. Church schools are being developed into week day instruction and the board hopes ultimately to link up this work with the curriculum of the public schools. Young people, he said, have been neglected, adding that of the eighty per cent., of young people who go to college with faith fifty per cent., of them lose their Christian faith before they leave college. The only cure for this condition he asserted is the church. Religion after all, he said, is the natural part of a natural life. Religious education he concluded was the largest problem in the life of the church today.

Bishop Tucker introduced Archdeacon Russell who has for years been associated with the work of the diocese and who has done what is described as being monumental work in the Lawrenceville manual training school for colored boys and girls of which he is principal. Referring briefly to his life work the archdeacon said that it was founded thirty five years ago 'on faith' and that it had progressed well. From its small beginnings it has developed a fine plant from which girls and boys are going into the world well equipped to fight its battles and reared in a wholesome religious atmosphere. Plunging into the topic Liberia the speaker said that in his view slavery was the schoolmaster which brought us to Christ. He explained this by saying that in 1619 the first slaves were brought into Virginia from Africa and that three years later the work of evangelizing the negro started when three slaves were baptized into the Christian faith. He sketched the political history of Liberia and its settlement as a free country for colored people. Today there are 3,500 communicants, 30 resident clergy, 25 schools while last year the natives raised among themselves the sum of $13,000 for church work. Much of the success, he said, was due to the training of natives to be ministers, and the adoption generally of a native ministry which has done probably more effective work than could have been done by other means. At the present rate of progress Liberia will be Christianized in a few years while the whole continent of Africa will have been won to Christ within fifty years.

JOHNNIE GROSSO (ABOVE) AND JACKIE COOGAN.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 31.—Jackie Coogan, movie star, makes $4,000 a day; Johnnie Grosso, local newsboy, makes eight cents.

But this is the only difference between them, as Johnnie sees it, for he's an actor, too.

After business hours he is known as the "Newark Jackie Coogan," for his recent hit in amateur theatricals. But what he can't understand is why his rival isn't called the "Hollywood Johnnie Grosso."

"This stuff about that Coogan kid getting a million and a half cold bucks for four pictures makes me sick," says Johnnie. "I don't see where he any better than me. Act? I'll say I can—

"And make faces? Watch—"

He holds the crown among the would-be actors and actresses of the neighborhood, and already has won considerable local fame.

Some day Johnnie hopes to be discovered by some far-sighted film magnate.

"That's how Jackie was made," says Johnnie disdainfully. "Charlie Chaplin picked him up.

"Say, if I only get half the chance I'll show the world. You'll just see."

Another edition of the evening papers came out and Johnnie had to go back to his job.

WARNS OF IDES OF MARCH AS TO INCOME TAXES

The Bureau of Internal Revenue, in the third of a series of official statements for the guidance of taxpayers in preparing their Federal income tax returns, gives the following general information with regard to the administration of the revenue law:

"Income tax returns, sworn to before a notary public or other person authorized to administer an oath, must be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue the district in which the taxpayer lives or has his principal place of business on or before March 15, 1923.

"Forms 1040 for filing returns of individual incomes of $5,000 or less and Forms 1040 for filing returns of incomes in excess of $5,000 have been sent by collectors to persons who filed similiar returns for the year 1921. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve the taxpayer of his obligation to file a return and pay the tax on time. Forms may be obtained from the offices of Collectors of Internal Revenue and deputy collectors.

"Revenue officers will be sent into every county in the United States to aid taxpayers in making out their returns. The advisory service heretofore offered city residents will be continued. This service, including the administration of the oath, is without cost to the taxpayers.

"Taxpayers, before seeking such assistance, however, are advised to read carefully the instructions on the forms. Many questions, which on the face may appear perplexing, can be solved by study of the instructions. Especially, in justice to themselves, taxpayers are advised to note the instructions with regard to credits for personal exemptions and dependents and deductions.

"In justice to the Government they should note carefully the instructions with regard to income from salaries, wages, commissions, business, or profession, interest on bank deposits, income from partnerships, fiduciaries, income from rents and royalties and other income.

"The taxpayer who, when the form is received, will devote to it an hour's study will go a long way in assuring himself that he is making a correct return."

JOHN W. CARTER OFF FOR MEET IN RICHMOND

State Committee Meeting At Hotel Murphy Tomorrow Evening

John W. Carter, Jr., aspirant for the nomination for the Senate of Virginia for the Danville-Pittsylvania district, left early this morning for Richmond, Va., whither he goes to attend the meeting of the Democratic State Central committee called by the State Chairman Harry Flood Byrd for tomorrow, ground-hog day. The occassion for this special convocation of the one hundred men and women who constitute the State Democratic party organization in the interval between State conventions is to determine how this senatorial district will determine the conflict between the two political units as to the method of nominating a candidate.

The Democratic County committee has already gone on record as favoring a convention and has sought to fix the basis of apportionment of representation in such convention. On the contrary, the City Democratic Committee has dissented from the county views and action and, is on record as favoring a primary, or better still, a free-for-all at the special election on February 20th with Messrs. John W. Carter and N. E. Clement as the contestants.

There is no certainty that a quorum of the State Central committee will appear in response to the call, the occasion of the prospective meeting being largely of a local character. The development of the spirited near-controversy over the road-bond situation into which State Chairman Byrd has been drawn by criticisms of and references to him, and the concern of many members of the committee as to the road situation and the program of the extra session called for February 28th will probably conspire to promote attendance on the State Central Committee meeting. It is believed. Many of the committeemen are members of the General Assembly, of the Virginia Good Roads association or of both, and these will all be present. In fact, the precipitation of the road bond controversy by ex-Commissioner Coleman could hardly have been better timed had it been intended as a means of stimulating interests in the State committee meeting. The Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Ninth districts are likely to be well represented, and the First, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Tenth will almost certainly have one or more representatives present.

There is some question whether under the primary law, the State Central committee could now order one, with less than 28 days intervening between the date of the committee meeting and that of the special election. Besides, the cost of a primary would be heavy, not to say prohibitive, if one were ordered and the two aspirants saddled with these costs. On the other hand, the matter of ordering a convention is one of doubtful wisdom and expediency, and if determined upon, the basis of apportionment of representation would be vital. The committee may not be willing to butt into a purely local contest and take action which would be unsatisfactory to either faction.

The indications are that no nominations will be made, but that the committee will authorize both Democratic aspirants to make the race in the special election, thus limiting participation to these two.

LIONS LUNCH AT BURTON HOTEL

The Woes of Life Furnished Subject Matter for the Speeches

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Lions Club was held yesterday at 1 p. m., at the Burton Hotel, about 45 members being in attendance. A splendid luncheon had been prepared by the Burton management and to this the Lions did full justice. Later there were speeches.

It seems that the doctors who had charge of the program had planned a short of revenge upon the rest of the members by assigning to various ones the task of telling of the disagreeable side of their work. It is generally conceded that the doctors have as many if not more disagreeable incidents to occur in their daily routine as any other class. Therefore, it was sweet music for them to listen to the plaints of others.

M. H. Skadden was first called upon to present his tale of woe. Scenting a trick, skad, at first, said that his daily business experience constituted no more or less than a bed of roses; that he had no worries, no troubles, and so he sat down, but when he heard two other speakers string out a list of troubles some several yards long Skad began to remember that the stationery business also had a few uneven places and he was moved to tell 'em.

To look at the placid, unworried countenance of an undertaker one would be led to believe that such a calling is unbroken by those irritating incidents that bring down the life expectancy average and make the vocation lucrative; but to hear Thomas Fox tell of the rough spots in the life of an undertaker, one no longer wonders why the paths of the profession lead but to the grave.

J. H. Winiker, lumber dealer, was onsessed with one unpleasant phase of his work, as though it were peculiar to his line and had not furrowed the faces of business men from time immemorial—that is, the collecting end. His dissertation on the matter of collecting brought protest from several members who feared, perhaps, that they would be made to pay their bills if his plans were put into effect.

ARREST 3 ON BOOZE CHARGE

Three arrests were made Tuesday by County Officer J. W. Pugh in connection with a haul recently which netted nearly 20 gallons of whisky and a Ford roadster. The men taken in custody were Roy and Dave Chatten and Oscar Farthing. They were taken to Chatham Tuesday where they were given a hearing before Magistrate H. C. Collie, who bonded them under the sum of $500 for their appearance before the grand jury.

The whisky was captured several days ago about 30 miles from Danville in Pittsylvania county. The men on seeing that they were going to be caught, abandoned the machine, which was taken in charge by the officers.

Ailing Children Get Well on Syrup Pepsin

A small dose at bedtime brings relief and laughter by morning

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

HOSPITAL and doctor's records prove that 75 per cent of human illness has its origin in the intestinal canal, complicated with what is commonly called constipation. Realizing what that figure means, mothers should contrive methods of handling their children while they still control them that will prevent these future dangers. Teach children regularity of bowel movement, and be especially watchful of young girls. Insist on two passages a day until the age of 18, when one is usually sufficient. Give plenty of oranges and apples, plenty of butter because it lubricates the intestines, and encourage the drinking of water.

If you detect restlessness, belching, gas or wind on the stomach, sleeplessness, or lack of appetite, examine the tongue and you will find it coated, accompanied by unpleasant breath. The child is bilious, constipated. According to age, give from one-half to a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which children never object to taking as they like the taste. By morning the youngster will be well again. Likewise if the nostrils are stuffed up or there is persistent sneezing, a dose of Syrup Pepsin will break up the fever and cold.

Mrs. Geo. N. Colson of Bernard, Me., keeps her family well in that way, and Mrs. Ida A. Burkett of Carroll, La., who has been using Syrup Pepsin for a dozen years, has raised her three children on it. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. The formula, however, is on every package. Druggists have sold it with satisfaction to their customers for over 30 years, and it is now the largest selling family laxative in the world. Buy a bottle today. It will last you for months, and the cost is only about a cent a dose.

W. G. Rockefeller Wealth to Family

Trusts Created for Wife and Children in Will Filed at Greenwich, Conn.

GREENWICH, Conn., Jan. 31.—The will of William G. Rockefeller, son of the late William Rockefeller, nephew of John D. Rockefeller, and brother-in-law of James A. Stillman, was filed in the Probate Court here today by Sheraman & Sterling of New York City, as attorneys for the estate.

The will does not indicate the value of the estate, but it includes one-fourth of the estate of William Rockefeller, in addition to large holdings William G. Rockefeller had in Standard Oil, gas, mining and railroad companies.

Mrs. Rockefeller, who was Miss S. Elsie Stillman, daughter of the late James Stillman, the developer of the National City Bank, receives all the household furniture and personal effects. The will also creates a trust for her benefit for her life, consisting of the Rockefeller homes here and at No. 292 Madison Avenue, New York City, and of one-third of his residuary estate

The remaining two-thirds of the residuary estate is given in trust for the children, during Mrs. Rockefeller's life, and upon her death the entire residuary estate is divided into five separate trusts, one for each of the children. They are William A. Rockefeller, Godfrey S Rockefeller, John Sterling Rockefeller and Almira G. Rockefeller.

Percy A. Rockefeller, brother of William G. Rockefeller, William E. F. Griswold and Samuel F. Pryor are named executors and trustees In case of the death of one of the trustees the United States Trust Company, of New York is named as trustee

William Goodsell Rockefeller died at his home, No. 292 Madison avenue, New York City, Nov. 30, after an illness of three days. He was fifty-two years old. For several years prior to 1911, when he resigned, he was treasurer of the Standard Oil Company of New York.

He had almost retired from active participation in the affairs of the numerous corporations he was interested in at the time of his death, but he was a director of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company, New York Mutual Gas Light Company, Oregon Short Lines Railroad, Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation Company, and the Union Pacific Railroad.

WOMAN'S HEALTH RESTORED

She Claims Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did It After Everything Else Failed

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"I feel that I ought to let you know about my case. I was ailing and could barely do my housework and washing I was so run-down, just from having one child. I took a lot of medicines and had doctors. Then I gave them all up and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I feel wonderfully good now. I do everything that comes along, and we all take your medicine as a tonic when we don't feel just so. I am thankful for what the Vegetable Compound has done for my health and for my family."—Mrs. MARY SAIECHECK, 944 23th Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Letters like these testify to the value of the Vegetable Compound. These women speak from the fullness of their hearts. They describe as correctly as they can their conditions: First, those symptoms that affected them most conspicuously; and later the disappearance of those symptoms. They are sincere expressions of gratitude. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been so praised by women.

There was a small quantity of mash in four small stills. The entire capture was valued at $6,000.

DRUGGIST MAKES GREAT DISCOVERY FOR INDIGESTION

Indigestion and its attendant ills such as dyspepsia, heart-burn, sour stomach, griping pains, dysentery, diarrhoea, colic, cholera morbus, chronic constipation, gas, etc., and even sick, nervous headaches are directly traceable to disorders in the digestive organs and can now be quickly relieved with new cordial called "Anti-Ferment," originated by a druggist and recommended by physicians.

The food sours before it is fully digested, thus putting into solution toxic poisons that are absorbed into the system, irritating the intestines and setting up inflammation. To avoid this, you simply have to prevent fermentation by using Anti-Ferment.

Anti-Ferment neutralizes the acid condition of the stomach, cleanses and sweetens the bowels, soothes and heals the inflamed intestines and increases the flow of gastric juices, giving quick and certain relief. Get a bottle of Anti-Ferment from your druggist with a guarantee of satisfactory results or money returned. It will improve your appetite, give you restful sleep and make you feel better than you ever felt in your life.—adv.

Otis Bradley Is In As Clerk Of Court

Otis Bradley, who was elected clerk of the corporation court at the last general election, assumed office this morning with a new force of deputies succeeding John R Cook, who, for many years, held the post and his deputies. Mr. Bradley has appointed as his deputies, G G Bagley, who has been assistant city auditor for some months; A. J. Browder, both of this city, and J H. Stewart, of New York, a nephew of Mr. Bradley. All reported for duty this morning, and began familiarizing themselves with their new duties The checking out of Mr. Cook will take place within a few days under the supervision of a committee which Mr Cook asked the judge of the court to appoint some time ago. Messrs Morris Moore and James H Green, who have been deputies in the office under the regime of M. Cook will remain in the office probably for several days winding up the affairs of the retiring incumbent.

Mr. Cook has not decided as to his plans after he has wound up his affairs in the clerk's office He said this morning that it would take him nearly two months to complete his record on account of many cases instituted under his clerkship still being on the dockets He admitted that he was considering going to Florida but his mind is by no means made up.

Mr. Cook today closed a long record of service with the courts. It was on June 15th 1885 that he entered the clerk's office as a deputy when William Rison was clerk of the court. He served as deputy until September 3rd 1901 when Mr. Rison resigned the position and Judge A. M. Aiken appointed Mr Cook clerk There followed a special election in which Mr. Cook was a candidate and he was elected by the people Every eight years since then h has stood for re-election and has been elected over opposition until the last general election when Mr. Bradley defeated him.

Mr Bradley, the new clerk of the court entered the office on September 17th 1895 and was, with Mr. Cook, a deputy. Mr Bradley served six years under Mr. Rison and since that time has been chief deputy to Mr. Cook.

Both the incoming and outgoing clerks recalled today the growth of the work in the clerk's office. When Mr. Cook first became deputy the work of the clerk was comparatively light and all of it was conducted in one office with an iron safe large enough to contain the records. Year by year, as Danville developed, the work in the clerk's office which is a repository of all sorts of State and city papers has increased and Mr. Cook has seen the office broaden out, the building of the fireproof vault and the extension of the office which today is in need of even larger quarters.

Several people called today to pay their compliments to Mr. Bradley on assuming the office and to extend their thanks to Mr. Cook for his past services.

Girl Housekeeper Shot Dead, Priest Is Held by Police

Victim Runs to the Street From Catholic Parish House, Collapsing on the Sidewalk.

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 31.—Father John Dembinski, pastor of St. Casimer's Catholic church, Hess avenue and Atkins street, is being detained by the police pending an investigation into the death of Sophie Szymanowski, assistant housekeeper for the priest.

The girl was shot through the heart soon after last midnight, when three shots were fired in the priest's house. She ran to the street and collapsed.

Father Dembinski was found in bed in a stupor, and was unable to give a clear version of the events of the night. First he denied he knew of the shooting, but later he told the police the girl had been killed by accident.

Police believe that the priest, alone in the house, thought his housekeepers were burglars and fired at them

A 32-calibre automatic pistol was found in a drawer of a desk near the priest's bed. The magazine was empty, but five loaded shells were found in the drawer. Two exploded shells were found in a front room downstairs

Sammy Casey, who lives next door to the priest's house, told the police he saw women running from the house and a man was chasing them. Questioned by Detective Heisler he said the man was Father Dembinski

Mary Wojewoda, housekeeper for Father Dembinski and Miss Semanowski, had been visiting at the home of friends until after midnight, when they arrived home, the housekeeper told the police, she found the front door wide open

Two pet dogs were running around outside of the house at the time, and this, she said, made her believe that burglars were in the house, as the dogs are never outside at night

She said she walked into the house and called for Father Dembinski

"I looked toward the dining room and didn't see him," she told the police. "All of a sudden I saw a great big man 'My God, Sophie,' I said 'robbers are in the house,' and we ran back to the porch I heard a shot It passed right by my head and hit the girl"

Father Dembinski and Mary Wojewoda, both agreed three shots were fired.

"I didn't pay any attention to them," the priest said. "There is always a lot of trouble around here."

In his room Father Dembinski told the police the girl was slain by mistake His statements were not coherent, but he declared:

"Now look here. This girl was shot by mistake I had heard a lot of noises around the house. I stood in the dark. I had a gun in my hand. When I heard the noises I said 'who is there? who is there?' When I didn't get an answer I pulled the trigger, but the gun didn't fire."

After that his statements again drifted awa, from the actual shooting and he rambled about burglars. He seemed obsessed with the idea that burglars were about to break in on him

"Waverley" Will Be Sold, By Decree

WINCHESTER, Va., Jan. 31.—The old George Washington estate, "Waverley," consisting of 500 acres of land, situated near the old Hopewell meeting-house, has been ordered sold by a decree of the circuit court of Frederick county to satisfy the claims of nineteen heirs at law who have been located after a long search. Several of the heirs are said to live in Maryland, Louisiana, the District of Columbia, and one in California.

Heirlooms of the Washington family, consisting of portraits, furniture and military trappings, will be sold under the decree. Harry R. Korn and Thomas W. Harrison, of Winchester; Gardner L. Boothe and R. B. Washington, of Alexandria, and Frank Gosnell, of Baltimore, are members of the commission appointed by the court to sell the property.

BETTER THAN WHISKEY FOR COLDS AND FLU

New Elixir, Called Aspironal, Medicated With Latest Scientific Remedies, Used and Endorsed by European and American Army Surgeons to Cut Short a Cold or Cough Due to Cold and Prevent Complications.

Every Druggist in U. S. Instructed to Refund Price While You Wait at Counter if You Cannot Feel Relief Coming Within Two Minutes.

Delightful Taste, Immediate Relief, Quick Warm-Up.

The sensation in the drug trade is Aspironal, the quick-acting cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the common people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye or any other cold remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are now supplied with the wonderful new elixir, so step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk half a dollar for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonfuls. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel relief coming within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and babies, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for infants and children, as well as for adults.—adv.

NEW STORES AT FIVE FORKS ARE ABOUT FINISHED

Two new store-buildings are just about completed at Five Forks. The construction of one of these stores has progressed to such an extent that it is already occupied by C. R. Booth and Bro., grocers. The other, a double storeroom will soon be occupied by the Five Forks Grocery Co., C. W. Shell and R. M. Floyd, proprietors.

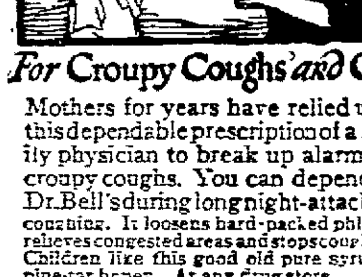

The latter store has two apartments overhead, both handsomely finished and modernly equipped. These apartments will be ready for occupancy in about three weeks.

The storeroom to be occupied by the Five Forks Grocery Co., replaces an old wooden structure that was build some 35 years ago. It is a double storeroom and will be handsomely fitted out by the proprietors. This building is on the corner of Pine and Jefferson streets and is owned by A. Siddle, of Reidsville.

Th smaller store is the property of Mrs. Emma E. Hall. The total outplay of the two buildings is about $10,000. The new buildings add much to the appearance of the Five Forks neighborhood and, it is understood, will act as an incentive for further improvements in that particular section.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

Facts About Child-Birth

AN eminent physician has shown to thousands of expectant mothers just how to be free from dread, and from much of the suffering which many mothers experience for months, right up to the moment when the Little One arrives!

Mrs. Wm. Washington, 197 Louise Ave., Nashville, Tenn., says: "There is positively no woman on earth that would be without 'Mother's Friend' during expectancy if she only knew the value of comfort."

"Mother's Friend" is externally applied to the region of the abdomen, back and hips. It relieves the tension on nerves and ligaments as month follows month. Finally, it makes child-birth a joy instead of a painful dread.

Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA-47, Atlanta, Ga., for a free wonderful book containing information every expectant mother should have. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" today. It is sold by all druggists—everywhere.

CAN RUSSIA SWAY SCALES OF WAR?

IS Russia and her sovietism a menace to the peace of Europe?

This is a question disturbing those who think they see in Russia a powerful ally for Germany in possible trouble growing out of France's invasion of the Ruhr.

Tied up with it is this question: Has sovietism really changed?

A man who has just come from Russia, and who sees her through the unbiased eyes of a philanthropist, discusses here for NEA Service the economic background in which are mirrored all the probabilities of Russia as a factor for war or peace:

BY EDWARD THIERRY
(Special to The Bee)

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—"Economically, Russia is weak. Financially she is flat. Philanthropy cannot restore her and only public finance can."

A. T. BURNS

This is the picture painted by Allen T. Burns, member o fthe commission on Russian relief, just returned from a four-months tour of investigation.

Burns, noted for his civic and sociological work in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Rochester, Chicago and New York, spoke with the strict emphasis that he had neither comment nor opinion on Russia's political and military aspects.

His conclusions, otherwise, are these:

"Communism exists mainly in name. The power of the peasants is becoming supreme. The peasants' passion in peace, they do not want war; a significant thing about them is their gratitude, admiration, even adoration, for the United States.

"Restoration of agriculture is the biggest thing before the republic. M. Chicherin, the foreign minister, agreed with that, saying to me: 'The need is so pressing that it will compel us to get a foreign loan.' I ventured to suggest that if it is so pressing perhaps the soviet might be compelled to meet the terms of the people who have money to lend. Chicherin was silent!"

Burns declared that step by step, the peasants were forcing a change in communism.

"Russia normally is 90 per cent. agricultural," he said. "Industrial workers created communism. Now there is scarcely any industry; workers are either idle or flocking back to the land.

"Peasants forced the revocation of confiscations of grain and produce in favor of a scale of 10 to 12 per cent. tax on a normal crop; they grew only enough to feed themselves and demanded from the government tickets they were entitled to under the soviet scheme for things they didn't raise.

"The next step in revolutionizing communism was the abandonment of government operation. The government still owns everything—in name. For example, they let corporations run industries—and hand back to them 90 per cent. of the profits; it simply, under a different name, taxation of 10 per cent. of private enterprise."

Burns made it plain that he could make no political forecasts. His emphasis was on the declaration that every consideration of Russia must go back to agriculture, which is Russian life, backbone, and ruling motive.

"The outstanding fact is that for the past two years she has been planting but 50 per cent. of normal," he said. He pointed out that the summer was 50 per cent. as bad as that of 1921 and affected an arear in which there are 15,000,000 people

Issuance Of Tax Exempt Paper Must Be Stopped

WASHINGTON, Jan 31—The continued issuance of tax exempt securities must be stopped or the federal government must find some substitute for its surtaxes on incomes Secretary Mellon declared tonight in a letter to Clarance H. Kelsey, chairman of the Taxation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York. Mr. Mellon's communication was a reply both to a letter from Mr Kelsey and to a report by the latter's committee to the Chamber which will be taken up for consideration at a meeting tomorrow.

The issue the secretary said, "is immediate and serious" It persistence he added is distorting our whole economic structure and is hampering the development of business and industry throughout the country. Reviewing the whole category of the argument for and against the issue of fully tax exempt obligations the secretary urged the New York organization not to take a position adverse to the adoption of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the further issue of tax exempt securities.

Mr. Mellon argued that since the greatest importance attaches to the exemption from federal sur-taxes, the value of the exemption depends largely upon the income of the individual tax payer.

Generally speaking, he said "it will be greatest in the case of the wealthiest taxpayers while to the person paying only a normal tax or low surtax, he exemption will be of little value.

"This makes it quite impossible, as a practical matter, for the borrowing state or federal government to obtain full value for the exemption carried by the securities for in the nature of things the securities will be sold in the open market at quoted prices adjusted to market conditions, though to one purchaser the exemption may be worth little or nothing, to another purchaser who pays the same price the exemption may be worth ten or eleven per cent. on a taxable security."

The secretary expressed the belief that inasmuch as the federal government was taxing virtually all of its securities and the state governments issue tax exempt obligations, there was no compensating advantage to the federal government from the lesser interest rates, if any, that accrue to the state or municipal governments. The situation, Mr. Mellon described as an involuntary subsidiary which the federal government conferred upon state and municipal governments at the expense of the federal government's own revenues

FERTILIZER SALES SHOULD APPROACH NORMAL THIS YEAR

The fertilizer selling season opens soon under more auspicious auguries than in the last two years. The outlook for volume of sales is good and profits should show improvement.

It appears that the South will make a desperate effort to get the crop in the ground early so that it can be garnered a little ahead of the weevil. To do this considerable fertilizer must be used—much more than in the last two years.

Fertilizer sales in the South last year were approximately 70 per cent [illegible] in 1921.

CLASHES JAZZ UP PROCEEDINGS IN ARKANSAS

(By The Associated Press)

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 31. — Several clashes between Senators J. R. Wilson and G. Otis Bogle enlivened the proceedings tonight during the examination of witnesses by the Arkansas Legislature's joint committee conducting an investigation into troubles at Harrison, Ark., and joints along the Missouri and North Arkansan Railroad.

Clashes between Senators Wilson and Bogle reached a climax when Wilson refused to grant permission to J. S. Rowland, attorney for the railroad and the "citizens of North Arkansas" to ask a witness a question. An informal agreement to allow attorneys for the railroad unions and for the "citizens and the railroad" to examine and cross examine witnesses hereafter was reached after the argument between the Senators but the matter was not put to a vote because of the absence of a quorum of the committee

J. T. Rogers, a St. Louis newspaper man and C. L. Degoche, the striking engineer, were the only witnesses examined tonight. Their testimony dealth principally with conditions at Harrison proceeding and immediately following the lynching of E. C. Gregor, striking railroad employe at Harrison on the morning of January 16. Both witnesses brought into their testimony the names of a number of persons they said were active in patrol work and examining strikers. Subpeonas will be issued for the persons named, it was announced

FUNERAL OF MRS. YARBROUGH

The body of Mrs. T. B. Yarbrough, who died early yesterday morning in a Greensboro hospital, arrived here yesterday afternoon on train No. 36 and was removed to the home, 848 Paxton street. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home, the services to be conducted by Rev. James M. Shelburne. Interment will be made in Green Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Yarbrough, who has been ill about two months was removed to a Greensboro hospital one week ago today. She passed away yesterday morning at 2.33 o'clock. Besides her husband she is survived by three children, Janette, Kathleen and Pearl.

HANDKERCHIEF IN COAT SIGN FOR BOOTLEGGERS

PORT HURON, Mich., Jan. 31.—All that is necessary to get a drink in Port Huron or Sarnia, Ont., just across the border, is to display a white handkerchief protruding from the coat pocket when on the street, a bootlegger told Judge Clare B. Black. A moonshine vendor will appear promptly and ask whether it is a pint or a quart the thirsty one wants, the court was told.

Life Is a Burden For Bootlegger

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 31.—Reports are being circulated that the federal revenue officers, engaged in enforcing prohibition, are making it easy for the county and State officers to arrest offenders, seeing that there is a reward of $50 for the local men in making such captures of men and stills. It is said that there are just twenty cases for the consideration of the federal courts, while the State courts are blocked with such offenders. It is a fact that in the last six months the county and city officers have been making life a burden for the bootlegging fraternity, and several large captures have been made, with hundreds of gallons of liquor and machines.

It is learned that there are seventy-five cars in the hands of the federal authorities at Roanoke, which have been recently captured with liquor, and there are several hundred cases of violators of the law to be tried in the same court, the federal court, at the next term, which would indicate that the federal authorities have been acting on their own account.

MONROE, La., Jan. 30.—Harold Teegerstrom, timekeeper at the Southern Carbon Company plant at Spyker, La., for whom a country-wide search was instituted by federal agents and state authorities, following his disappearance on the night of Dec. 29, was back on his old job today. He was arrested late yesterday and released on $500 bond for his appearance as a material witness at the grand jury investigation at Bastrop in March into Morehouse parish kidnaping activities which resulted last August in the death of Watt Daniel and Thomas F. Richards, Mer Rouge citizens.

Teegerstrom was taken into custody at Spyker, after he had suddenly appeared in Monroe earlier in the day in almost as mysterious a manner as he had departed from his bunkhouse at the carbon plant shortly before the beginning of the open hearing at Bastrop. When he arrived here Teegerstrom told of having visited Eldorado, Ark., Alexandria, Baton Rouge and other places in Louisiana, which he would not name. He declared that he was not kidnapped and not forced to leave Spyker, but left "because I felt I was doing the right thing. I did it for my friends."

He said about 11 o'clock Dec. 29 a number of persons came to see him at his sleeping quarters at the plant in an automobile. "They said they would give me all the time I wanted to get my clothes and go with them," Teegerstrom said. "I did not go to the men but wandered around in the woods all night. I do not know what became of hte party. I was not interested in them after I made my get away." He said the following morning he caught a train out of the Monroe gas fields for Eldorado, Ark.

The timekeeper was wanted by the state at the opening hearing, which closed last Thursday, to testify as to the whereabouts of T. Jeff Burnett, meployed at the Southern Carbon company plant as foreman on the night of August 24 the date Daniel and Richard were kidnaped. Burnett was released on $5,000 bond recently on a charge of murder in connection with the death of the two.

POLICE FIND A CLUE TO THEFT

(By The Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 31.—One slender clue was being followed tonight by police and private detectives investigating the disappearance of $250,000 worth of jewelry belonging to Mrs. David G. Joyce, wife of a Chicago lumber man which she reported today had been stolen from their winter home here. Frankly admitting that the circumstances surrounding the case were baffling the polcie turned their search toward a peddler, reported to have been seen in the neighborhood of the Joyce estate making a house to house canvass during the last three days.

The theft was not discovered by Mrs. Joyce until this afternoon, although she believes the jewelry was taken from the dresser of her room last night while the family was at dinner.

The house is entwined with Bougainvilla. Entrance to Mrs. Joyce's room, it was first thought was effected by same one who climbed to a window by way of the vine and punched holes in the screen, unlocking it from the inside.

Baptist Church, Richmond, Plans $1,000,000 Edifice

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 30.—Douglas Ellington, Pittsburgh architect, has been awarded a contract for designing a $1,000,000 edifice for First Baptist church of this city, to be erected at Monument avenue and the Boulevard, it was announced today.

The building will be known as First Baptist Temple and will occupy an entire block. The site was donated a year or two ago by Whitmel Forbes, millionaire business man of this city. First Baptist church has been located at Twelfth and Broad streets. The Rev. Dr. George W. McDaniel is its pastor.

SIX PERSONS KILLED

WORKED WAY UP TO SUPREME COURT DESPITE ILL HEALTH

(Special to The Bee)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Former Associate Justice William R. Day is resting at a Florida resort in an effort to recover his health. He has been in poor health for several years.

William Rufus Day, former associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, took to the law profession almost by heredity. He was born in Ravenna, O., April 17, 1849, when his father, Luther Day, was chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court. He naturally turned to law for his life work and in 1872 was admitted to the Ohio bar.

After practicing at Canton, O., for 14 years, Day became judge of the court of common pleas there, which office he held for four years. Failing health kept him from filling his appointment as U. S. District Judge in 1889, but on his recovery he became assistant secretary of state under McKinley, in 1897. McKinley and he were warm friends.

A year later he became secretary of state, and at the end of the Spanish-American war became chairman of the peace commission which drew up the treaty of Paris closing the war.

After that, Day was appointed U. S. circuit judge for the sixth district and held that office until 1903, when Roosevelt made him associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court. His 20 years of service in Washington entitled him to full pay as associate justice for the rest of his life.

Just before retirement was officially announced, Day was appointed as umpire on the American-German Claims Commission, which duties he had to relinquish because of his ill health.

Day was married in 1875 to Miss

WILLIAM R. DAY.

Mary E. Schaefer of Canton, O., who died in 1912.

In spite of his frail physique, Day established a reputation as an indefatigable worker. On his retirement from the Supreme Court, his associates paid him the following tribute, which summarized his character and devotion to his work:

"We shall miss your loyalty to the court and its traditions, your affectionate fellowship, your wit and humor and your unfailing tranquility and good sense."

Soviet Recognition Still Far Distant

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—So far as the Harding administration is advised, political and economic conditions in Soviet Russia have not improved to an extent that makes recognition by the United States practacable or desirable.

Despite numerous protestations by Soviet officials of adoption of a new polciy to conform to conditions laid down by Secretary of State Hughes as essential to recognition, the United States is inclined to insist upon a demonstration in fact rather than "paper protests."

It was declared emphatically that, when recognition is extended, it will not be on account of any provision in the contract with the Sinclair oil interests for a petroleum concession covering the northern half of Saghalin island, now occupied by Japanese troops, or on account of any other similar contract.

Administration officials earnestly hope conditions will so improve in Russia as to make recognition possible long before the five-year period apparently prescribed in the Sinclair contract.

So far as Washington is advised, there is no connection between the Sinclair concession and control of Kamachatka by the Japanese. Japanese Nationals long have held certain concession in Kamachatka, including extensive fishing rights.

RAY BREAKS HIS WORLD'S RECORD

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Joie Ray, of the Illinois A. C., Chicago, broke his own world's record for the mile and a half indoors at the Millrose A. C. games at Madison Square Garden tonight by finishing in six minutes 41 4-5 seconds.

This gave Ray his second Rodman Wanamaker Cup, the event trophy, and marked the sixth time in seven years that he had won this race. His previous record of six minutes 42 3-5 seconds was made last year.

The Chicago taxi driver jumped into the lead at the gun, lapped his field before the mile ended and broke the tape one hundred yards in front of Ray Bucker of Chicago, who was second. William Goodwin, of the New York A. C., was third. Murchison defeated Bob McAllister, New York's "flying cop". Lever who won the 50 yard sprint, and Al Leconey Lafayette Intercollegiate champion in that order.

Allen B. Helffrich, Penn. State national one-half mile champion, won the six hundred yard invitation race for the E. H. Pest trophy in 1:13 4-5, only two fifths of a second slower than the American record held by Thomas J. Halpin, Boston A. A.

ADMENDMENT PROPOSED

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—A constitutional amendment which would require at least one branch of a ratifying legislature to be enacted after the submission of a proposal to change the constitution was proposed in the House today by Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the Dmocratic leader.

The Anne Eliza Johns Chapter U. D. C. will meet Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Memorial Mansion.

Henry Clews, Dean Of Wall St., Dies

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Henry Clews, widely known banker, died this afternoon at his home on West 51st street after an illness of several months.

Henry Clews, "the dean of Wall Street," author and public speaker, for more than 50 years was one of the leading financiers in the United States.

Born in Staffordshire, Eng., on August 14, 1840, he was studying for the ministry, as a young man when he accompanied his father on a trip to New York. He decided to enter mercantile life and some years after the panic of 1857 helped to organize the banking firm of Stout, Clews and Mason which later became Livermore, Clews and Co. In 1877 the firm became Henry Clews and Company, which it has since remained

Upon the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861, Salmon P. Chase, Secretary of the Treasury, appointed Mr. Clews government financial agent for the sale of bond issues to prosecute the struggle. He was so successful that President Grant later appointed him as fiscal agent of the United States for all foreign governments. In this capacity he was an adviser in the organization of the modern financial system of Japan, a service for which in 1908 he was decorated as a Commander of the Order of the Rising Sun

Mr. Clews, who was a life-long Republican, twice declined offers of the portfolio of Secretary of the Treasury, once the Republican nomination for mayor of New York and once the Collectorship of the Port of New York. He always maintained an active interest, however, in organization of a patriotic charitable, or educational character including Ohio Northern University and the Metropolitan Civic Forum of which he was treasury and director.

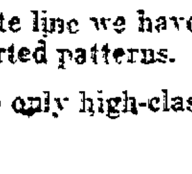

He was also a director of the American Civic Alliance, the Japan Peace Society, the Royal Society of Arts of England, the American Chamber of Commerce of Paris, director of the International Peace Forum, president of the National Highways Protective Association, former treasurer of the American Geographical Society and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. He was a founder of the Union League Club of New York and a member of the Turf and Field, Army and Navy, Economic Union and Press Clubs of New York, the Authors' of London and the Boston City Club.

He wrote a number of books, including "Twenty Eight Years in Wall Street" (1885); "The Wall Street Point of View," (1900) "Fifty Years in Wall Street," (1908); and "Speeches and Essays" (1910). In one of these volumes he tells of an interesting story of how he got into the New York Stock Exchange for $500 when membership has since been quoted as high as $90,000.

"I was a young man then, a very young man, and one of many who wanted to get into the exchange. The old members of that organization considered themselves a close corporation and fought tooth and nail to keep us out. They charged one-eighth for each stock transaction. When I advertised far and wide that I would execute orders for stock at one-sixteenth, cutting the commission in half, they were glad to take me in."

Mr. Clews married Miss Lucy Madison Worthington, a grand-niece of President Madison, and a descendent of General Andrew Lewis, next in command to General Washington in the Revolutionary War. For many years they made their home in New York City and had a summer residence in Newport, R. I.

Clear thinking! -normal digestion restored

Dr. KING'S PILLS -for constipation

PAW PAW CALLED THE PERFECT DIGESTER

Scientist Explains Its Tonic Effect Upon the System, Saying It Makes Dyspepsia Impossible.

In condensed form, the following is what Professor Willard H. Morse, M. D., F. S. S., a Fellow of the London Society of Science, wrote to Robert Halford, an eminent therapeutist:

"Munyon's Paw Paw is scientific in that it properly presents to the materia medica—to the medical profession and to the sick and suffering the active principleship of the fruit of the carica-papaya (Paw Paw) in its most eligible form.

"It accomplishes digestion surely and perfectly. It makes the most of the food. Makes the best of the food. Assures perfect assimilation. It perfects the several fluids that have to do with digestion and makes dyspepsia impossible.

"Munyon's Paw Paw dispossesses from the blood all faulty acids or poisons, because the blood made from the food treated by Paw Paw is a true vital fluid, which refuses to contain the acids, germs or poisonous taints, and as most diseases arise from impure blood, it makes all of them impossible."

If you are nervous, if you are weak, if you have indigestion in any form, if you have stomach trouble, if you cannot sleep, try Munyon's Paw Paw Tonic. It has stopped those conditions for thousands and may for you. It costs $1 per bottle and is for sale at all first-class drug stores. Munyon's Homoeopathic Home Remedy Co., Scranton, Pa.

Sold in Danville by Frank B. McFall and all other up-to-date druggists.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

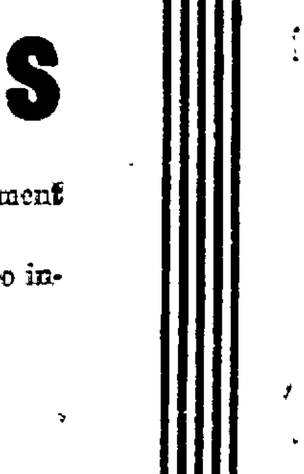

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

IT WAS HELL!

And we're all glad it's over. But you and I Buddy, both feel mighty good to know that we did our part when we were needed. And it's going to be a lot of pleasure to us when our kids get to the history class in school and can say "My dad helped lick 'em!" You can show them how their dad looked by having "Spirit of the American Doughboy" statuette or lamp, the only representation of the American Soldier there is showing him as he really was in action. An exact reproduction of the famous life size bronze statue of the same name made only by us. Send for Beautiful book telling the wonderful story of this attractive lamp—it's FREE.

Half Million Boy Scouts On Fourteenth Birthday

(Special to The Bee)

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The 400,000 Boy Scouts in America are beginning the celebration of their fourteenth birthday, this week, with the addition of another 100,000 to their membership.

This is the culmination of an intensive "anniversary round-up," which started last November and had the object of raising the membership of this famous boys' organization to the half-million mark.

Thirteen years ago, the Boy Scouts of America was merely an idea in the minds of men who are still its guiding spirits. It followed the formation of a similar organization in England, n 1908, by Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell.

In the United States at this time there were two boys' organizations. One, founded y Ernest Thompson-Seton, was called Woodcraft Indians. The other, called the Sons of Daniel Boone, was led by Dan C. Beard.

These two organizations were combined and, February 8, 1910, were chartered as the Boy Scouts of America. Since then, the Boy Scouts have had some 2,000,000 boys in its membership, and at the beginning of this year had a standing membership of 400,601. This week, the leaders of the movement hope to count half a million boy scouts.

At the head of the organization today are men like Colin H. Livingstone of Washington, D. C., the only president the organization ever had; James B. West, chief scout executive since January 1, 1911; Mortimer L. Schiff, New York banker, vice president of the national council of the Boy Scouts of America; George D. Pratt of New York, treasurer; Clarence H. Howard of St. Louis, and Walter W. Head of Omaha, vice president of the National Bankers Association.

Although it is 13 years old, the Boy Scout movement is still in its infancy, say its officials. They point to the fact that there are some 8,000,000 boys of scouting age in this country and only half a million in the movement.

The aim of the Boy Scout movement is generally to supplement the various existing educational organizations and to teach boys to do things for themselves and for others.

Every boy, to become a scout, takes an oath in which he pledges himself to do his dty to God and country, to help other people at all times and to keep himself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight. His motto is "Be Prepared," and his slogan, "Do a Good Turn Daily."

Practically all religious bodies have endorsed this movement in connection with their own work with boys. Schools recognize it as an aid to education and prominent men throughout the country have shown a deep interest in its affairs.

Four presidents are on the list of honorary members—Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson and Harding. More than 30 governors have taken the scout oath as honorary "tenderfoot" scouts.

Leading the boys, with no money compensation for themselves, are nearly 130,000 business and professional men, who are acting as scoutmasters, troop committeemen and members of local councils.

TRADING OF BIG LEAGUE PLAYERS RESOLVES ITSELF INTO GAMBLE

A MAJOR league swap can be classed as a blindfolded lottery without libeling anybody.

It is legal in baseball business, but as to the winner and the loser—well, it is a snatch-grab exchange, with the ultimate result, success or failure, not known until months later.

Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, today is laughing and sniffing at Charles E. Ebbets and Wilber Robinson of the Brooklyn Superbas. And why not?

Didn't Rickey exchange Ferdinand Schupp and Harold Janvrin for Ed Pfeffer during the summer of 1921? Of course he did!

And didn't Pfeffer have one of the most prosperous seasons of his long career with the Cardinals during 1922?

And at the same time, move your finger around the list of National League players and try to locate Schupp and Janvrin. It can't be done.

Schupp now is located with Kansas City in the American Association, while Janvrin recently was released to the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League.

Pfeffer was the winning pitcher on the Cardinals' staff of 1922, winning 19 and losing 12 games, while with an earned run average of 3.58 he surpassed suchartists as Alexander, Meadows, McQuillan and Grimes.

Of course there are other trades that are not on the right side of Branch Rickey's ledger. There was one of several years ago with the Phillies, when the Cardinals parted with Lee Meadows, Gene Paulette and a wad of coin for Elmer Jacobs, Frank Woodward and Douglas Baird.

Rickey drew dead timber from the Phillies, while Meadows today is rated in the $50,000 class.

Western Athletes Are the Best?

By WALTER CAMP.

(Copyright, 1923, By The Bee)

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—It seems rather apparent today that the claim made by many people that Pacific coast Athletes type are the best in the country, is in quite some degree well founded. Those who make this claim produce evidence that is difficult of reputation tending to support the declaration that a Pacific coast athlete generally has greater powers of endurance as a type.

When such persons point to football and track contests of recent years when eastern and western athletes have contended for honors in these sports, it is difficult for the Alumni of Eastern colleges to combat the claim. Had the former carried it on to Rowing, the case would have been even more conclusive, for that coast crew last summer gave the Navy boat load the fight of it's life in the mad rush for the finish line.

Which, brings on logically to the quesion how then is it, that the Washington state crew authorities are quoted as saying they favor the shorter distance than four miles at Poughkeepsie? There must be some further explanation of the phenomenon.

For the Game's Sake

BY LAWRENCE PERRY

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—American Golf more than ever will be split into rival camps as a result of Walter Hagen's school in Texas. Already we are noting additions to the Hagen's faction and while there are no noteworthy desertions from the ranks of Sarazen adherents it is to be observed they are not saying very much just now.

The Rochester home bred is gaining admirers, but none the less the youthful Sarazen who wears the National Open and P. G. A. Crowns cannot be displaced in the estimation of the International World so long as these emblems adorn his swarthy brow.

In this connection the writer had a long talk today with an English publisher who plays golf a great deal and is an enthusiast in the sport. It is known, of course that Walter Hagen won the British open and that Sarazen has never been outside of America. Knowledge of courses, of Great Golfers and other things pertaining to golf that is possesed by a player such as Hagen must inevitably be beyond the Briar Cliff proud non the less the British golfing enthusiast thought, all things considered, that Sarazen in England, was rated ahead of Hagen, if only because he proved his superiority in the most complete and thorough test of all, a 72 hole match. And if he competes in the British Open at Troon this year the British will regard the task of regaining the cup which has taken two successive trips across the Atlantic as extremely different.

All of which is very interesting. However the bulk of British Golfers may well as to the relative proficiency of Hagen and Sarazen it is apparent that they have no hesitancy in awarding high supremacy in Woman's world of golf to Miss Joyce Wethered who last fall won her third successive British championship. In her own Women's sphere Miss Wethered occupied a position of grand alofness. it is maintained, such as no other golfer occupies.

Sarazen has his Hagen; other outstanding stars have their close rivals but the British Woman is honored as standing alone.

DANVILLE GIRLS QUINT DEFEAT SCHOOLFIELD "5"

The girls basketball team of the Danville High School had a reversal of form last evening and defeated the basketball quint, representing the Schoolfield Welfare organiation. The game was played in Schoolfield and drew a large crowd.

Hard luck and a number of other complaints have camped on the trail of the local girls basketball team during the present season, but, from the game put up last night, it would seem as though the worm had turned. Things look brighter.

During the first half Danville had everything its own way. The shooting of Schoolfield was off, while Danville found the basket frequently. However, all of the shooting was done by one player, Haga, forward, who secured five field goals and six foul goals.

HARRY KASKY, OF CHICAGO, WINS

(By The Associated Press)

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Jan., 31.—Harry Kasky, of Chicago, won both the half and three-quarters mile events in the Adirondack gold cup skating championship races here today. Kasky, with 90 points, now has a substantial lead in the meet his nearest competitor being Charles Gorman of St. John, N. B., with sixty.

Kasky and Gorman, who finished second, fought every inch of the finals in the half mile event after Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid, who previous had given both a battle, fell in the semi-finals and was carried from the track with a badly cut knee. Edward Corcoran of Johnson City, fell at the same time, but was uninjured. The winners time was 1:18 4-5.

The events tomorrow, the final day, will be the 440 yard and three mile races.

SPORTING SPIRIT.

If you want to get a man's real number, study him when he's playing, not at work. Ten minutes on a golf course, for instance, reveals more about a player's real character than a week in his office.

You can also analyze a man by the recreation he instinctively seeks. Real leaders have taken to golf because it's a game in which they can actually participate as players. Unlike baseball, a form of theatricals in which spectators take no part except paying the bills.

Recreation is the key to the psychology of nations the same as individuals. The Germans accurately mirrored their national traits by their Turnverein gymnastic and athletic movements—the members doing the same thing with a solidarity, sternness and machine-like functioning as one united movement. This spirit, of subordinating the individual to the organization, was the war-time spirit of the German army and home people back of the lines.

In countries which have the bull-fight as national recreation the people naturally have the bull-fight spirit—especially hero-worship and explosive emotions. Did the bull-fight spirit of the people create this bloody and cruel form of contest, or did the contest make the people sink to its own level? Which came first—egg or chicken?

The Chinese take to chess, dominoes and gambling in preference to active physical sports. So naturally the Chinese are speculative business people, with philosophical chess brains, and not inclined toward physical contests such as fist fights or war.

America and England have the Anglo-Saxon team spirit, which asserts itself in games like cricket, baseball and football.

Each player constantly tries to make a star play for himself, but his individualism does not make him forget that the team comes first. So one player is constantly watching to cover or rectify the errors of his teammates.

Under this team attitude there is a genuine sporting spirit such as you find in other nations. The team may be beaten, but there is no personal humiliation involved. The loser cheers the victor, the victor cheers the loser. They shake hands and practically forget the same, getting ready for another.

The French have no team spirit in their personalities. For sport they turn to fencing—two opponents, one to be victor, one the vanquished. It's all highly individualistic, no co-operation, no getting together and shaking hands after the duel.

HAUNTED

Without the window lies the rain-streaked night:
Without the wet black pavement shines like glass
Mirroring in long, wavering line of bright
Pure gold the haloed street lamps
Figures pass
Like wind-blown wraiths across the dripping pane.
And passing, turn a moment toward the light
Pale faces dumbly questioning. The rain
Burring the window, blots them from my sight.
Within is warmth and comfort that decides
Then wistful eyes. I turn away
And still
Those faces haunt me, one thin pane divides
My life from their life, my good from their ill
What must I do then? How act? Undismayed,
Throw up the window or draw down the shade?

DRAKES BRANCH, February 1.—(Grapevine Wireless.)—Oh, jazzy tunes are right in style; they seem to play them by the mile where e'er I chance to trek. The clitter-clatter, jigg-jagg junk—of all the music it's most punk and should be canned by heck. Time was when music soothed my soul and I was merry as King Cole—but such days are no more—nowadays real tunes are out of date, all they do now is syncopate and it's a beastly bore. There is no music in such rot and I could take a healthy swat at those who grind it out; I'd knock 'em north and galley west and boot 'em just beneath the vest and maybe bruise a snout. Oh, ye who write the natty tunes hark back about two dozen moons—or maybe sixty-eight—and give us stuff like you wrote then; you'll prove a friend to jazz-sick men and mitigate their fate. I'm sick of all this dizzy dope and fervently I pray and hope it soon will run its course; and when that happy day is here I'll toss my lid aloft and cheer until my voice is hoarse. Melodious tunes are restful things and good for popuh or kinas, they soothe the tired brain but oriental jigaroo should by musicians be taboo. Oh, give us music sane.

SCHOOL BONDS PASSED IN N. C.

(By The Associated Press)

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 31.—Cities and towns in North Carolina during the past two years voted bonds issues of approximately $15,000,000 for the purpose of providing better school buildings, according to the complete report of Dr. E. C. Brooks, superintendent of public instruction for North Carolina, made public tonight.

The counties are providing large brick buildings with auditoriums for the rural consolidated schools" the reports reads. This has been made possible through the aid of the special building fund authorized and by the last general assembly. This fund amounts to $5,000,000 and is loaned to the counties for a period of 20 years the counties paying one-twentieth of the principal and the accrued interest annually.

The report shows that the 'entire building program, when completed, will cost about $25,000,000.

Love and Law in Clash

BY ROC GIBBONS
(Special to The Bee)

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—Love or the law!

Which is more powerful?

The law of love holds love covers all sin.

The law of man punishes all offenders against it.

For love, Mrs. Eve Bernard here purposefully turned thief to provide her husband with statutory grounds to divorce her so he could marry and be happy with "the other woman," according to testimony introduced in court here in one of Chicago's strangest love and legal tangles.

A blase court wearied with the routine of justice was openly startled when Mrs. Bernard walked in and voluntarily confessed the theft of a $60 dress from a downtown department store without having attempted to make an easy escape.

"I'm guilty, judge," she declared simply. "I took the most expensive dress I could find to make the theft a felony. That gives you the right to send me to the penitentiary.

"There were cheaper ones around. But I wouldn't take them because they would have been only a misdemeanor.

"I don't want a trial. Give me the limit. I love my husband sufficiently to do for him. With me out of the way he can easily get a divorce on the grounds of my imprisonment in a penal institution. The lawyer told us so. I—"

Then she fainted.

Judge Schulman who has the case in hand admits he's gravely perplexed.

The woman is a confessed thief. For that, the law mercifully charges him to administer justice—of the man-made variety.

But, on the other hand, the law of love has already acquitted the 19-year-old bride.

"This woman has loved much, indeed," the court said. "It is to be disputed whether or not the alleged crime already had not been expiated before a higher tribunal than this.

"Viewed in this light it is hardly fitting that I should review a case appealed from such a pure source. To send her to prison would be a crime."

Then he issued summons to have the errant husband of but a few months brought before him.

MRS. EVE BERNARD

The vamp in the case will be enjoined from further interference, he promised.

And Mrs. Bernard, held temporarily, will be judged according to her own code it seems.

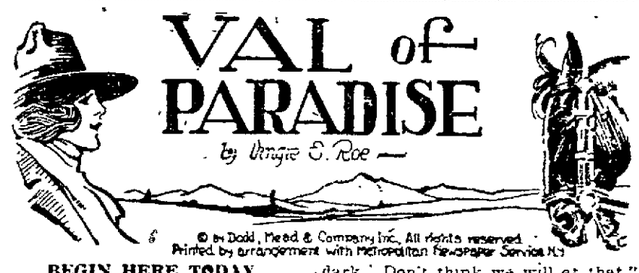

The wife's plight has moved the husband nearly to conciliation.

She is to be given the right to plead with love as her sole counsel before the bar.

In such an instance—
What would you have done?
Had you been the wife?
The Judge?
The husband?
Do you think that love is more powerful than the law and that it offers sufficient penalty in itself for crime committed in its behalf?

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BELLE HANNON praises her husband's friend, BOYCE CLENDENNING, to her daughter and expresses her wish that Val marry Boyce.

Val rides to the Mission for a visit with her friend, FATHER HILLAIRE. John Hannon hears of an ill word spoken against him by DYKE ATTISON and he shoots Dyke through the arm to teach him a lesson.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Now Val flung off her horse, caught the father's hand, stooped impulsively and kissed it, then shook it like a man with a strong grip, and looked up in his face with crinkling about her handsome eyes that made them woman-soft on the instant, no matter how wild she had been with sun, wind and speed a second before.

Always when Val dashed up like this Father Hillaire thought of another wild rider, but who, alas! came usually with the night and whose name did not pass the padre's lips.

"Father dear," said Val, "how are you?"

"Well, my daughter," he answered, "and happy in my humble walks."

"Then you've been getting some more refugees," said Val with conviction. "for only when you sing another load to your shoulder do you speak like that. And already the load is sky-high and ready to topple. You're some juggler, padre," she added fondly, "to always keep in under. How's Josephina?"

"Excellent."

"And Maria and her baby?"

"Not so well. I'm sorry to say. The cough. It stays with her, and the baby pulls her down and she grieves ever for the worthless one who left her to face despair."

Val clicked a pitying tongue and turned in at the gate of the garden.

Bonifacio, without being called this time, came eagerly and took Dawnlight, getting as a reward one fleeting smile from the girl which brought a sparkle to his dark face, for this Val Hannon was beloved by those who knew her, high and low alike.

"I'll come back, father," she said, smiling, "but first I must go and see Maria and Josephina and the new refugees—for I know I'll find some."

Father Hillaire waited patiently for a long hour, while Val went through the labyrinth of rooms and sat on the sanded walks under the wasatcha trees with Maria's baby on her lap, and listened to the latest tale of atrocities across the Border whence came the new refugees.

At the end of that time she came back to him, carrying her hat in her hand, and sat by the table in the shade and visited in that deep communion which attends friends.

The sun went down the heavens and the wondrous colors came sifting out of Infinitude, and at last the girl rose swiftly and called for Dawnlight.

"I always forget, father," she said, "how the time flies when I am here. Dark will catch me now."

So she mounted and leaned to press the padre's hand, and presently she was gone, down across the levels toward the Little Antelope, a streak of color in the lovely light, and Father Hillaire smiled as he watched her.

"Dawnlight, my beauty," said Val as they stretched away on the other side of the Antelope, "we'll have to run if we make it home by good dark. Don't think we will at that."

Long before they made Arroyo Pecos it was dark, the soft warm dark of the half-desert country.

Where the dim trail dipped down the steep banks of the cut and the shadows were darkest, Dawnlight snorted and halted, to pound on the brink with her sharp hoofs.

And the mare went, though with deep breaths of suspicion that whistled in the night. Down and across and up they went, swiftly, and were all but on the levels again, when Val jumped in her saddle, for a desert owl cried almost in her ear from the thick bushes on her left—cried and waited and cried again, to be answered far up the arroyo, and to be still.

Dawnlight raced away toward the distant sanctuary of Paradise, and the girl in her saddle never knew that the owl had voiced a warning, nor that, an hour later, two men rode out of Arroyo Pecos by different ways, one, a huge, square figure of a man on a swift and heavy horse, toward the south, the other to the north.

Never knew that, had she been below the rim of the cut, so that she might look up against the stars, she would have known the great red horse that heaved his massive withers over the brink with ease and power for Redstar the matchless—nor the man in his saddle for the Boss of Paradise.

CHAPTER VII
The Fourth at Santa Leandra

THE glorious Fourth came up across the range-land as all Fourths should, clear, bright, warm with sun and cool with a little wind that would soon die and leave heat and dust to rule.

At Paradise a small tragedy had been enacted, for Redcloud for the first time in his life had been left behind when the Red Brood went away to run. Alone in his paddock the old racer ran this way and that along the fence, his head high on his lifted neck, his eager eyes straining into the distance toward the north and west where yesterday at dusk those other favored ones had been led away.

He was to go indeed, though in another capacity, for Val Hannon's heart was sore for him and she groomed him with her own hands, combed his flowing mane and tail, and put upon him the splendid silver mounted bridle that was the Redstar's own.

Dirk came out with a cow pony ready to ride the twenty miles to Santa Leandra with her, and Val must run into the house to get the neat flat package that held her finery and was to be tied behind Dirk's saddle, to kiss her mother and push Fanita laughing into a corner.

So presently she rode out of the corral on Redcloud, her dark eyes shining and with roses in her dusky cheeks—and Dirk beside her rested adoring eyes upon her.

As they turned away toward the north Val turned in her saddle, halted, for from far down in a stretching field there came, clear on the morning air, a keen and ringing call—the whinnying cry of a horse to his beloved—and Redstar stood, a spot of color on the green, his head high, his nostrils blowing, his soft eyes watching eagerly.

Then she went forth to the joy of a ride at dawn, the visit to the town, which was a rare experience to her, the dance and the races.

The girl's dark eyes were alight with pleasure as she took in the brilliant crowds, and they crinkled joyously when the Texas boy spied her and came swinging gracefully up to greet her with a hand at his hatbrim. Dirk frowned, for all Paradise was jealous of its sovereign.

And she passed on to the corrals where Briston stood to take the horses. Rosy Porter and Perly Jacks and Siff O'Neil, all riders for Paradise, crowded around her.

"Val," said Perly, "how you goin' to divide in' day? Who's goin' to walk about with you first?"

"Any way suits you, boys. Toss jacks, I guess."

She was gay as an Indian herself in her scarlet silk waist, black tie and tan riding shirt, which same outfit she would wear all day, and she was happy as a lark.

She encountered some few people that she knew, a girl from a ranch far north, several cowboys, and lastly Boyce Glendenning, handsome in his heavy blond way and lazily interested in her.

"Will you eat dinner with me, Val?" he wanted to know abruptly, standing before her in the beaten dust of the trampled street—and Perly flushed red beneath his golden tan.

Val—their Val—eat dinner with any one beside the bunch from Paradise? It would be a sacrilege, a humiliation and a cause for battle!

It was significant of Paradise that not one puncher sought him a girl, that all would attend in a body with John Hannon's daughter in their midst, proud of her beauty, alert to every word or look—all, that was, save Tom Briston, whose first, last and only care was the five red horses in his charge.

Now Val looked Clendenning over coolly and shook her head.

"No," she said, softening her refusal with a smile, "I've got partners—five of them."

Dinner took an hour—and suffice it to say in passing, that every one from Paradise did it full justice. Shortly after the crowds began to agitate, as by common impulse, toward the southern end of town where the open plains come up abruptly, where the corrals stood and where the "race track" lay. This was simply a long level stretch, flat as one's palm and soft with trodden loam, the most natural and ideal track in the world.

There was no fence about it and the gay crowds strung out along its entire length. It fell to Siff to look out for Val, and never did man accept honor more delightedly. Siff was young and full of laughter, vain as any O'Neil before him had ever been, and they sauntered halfway down the track, craned their young necks for a good vantage for both start and finish and sat down on the naked earth as simply as the squaw a rod beyond.

"Hi! Yi! Yi!"

The yells yipped down the track in a wave as the beautiful creatures lay down to earth and ran in pure joy of the open, the light and their own free power and speed.

Dawnlight was the only well-known horse in this heat, the others being newcomers from up north. For a time they were well bunched and Val held her breath. Then the red mare, stretching out like a shaft of light, began to forge ahead.

"Running away!" cried Val. "Coming! Coming!"

"Wait!" warned Siff with an anxious frown.

THE ONE-MAN WOMAN—NO. 46

THE TEST

By Ruth Agnes Abeling

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATE WARD, widow of DAN WARD, has a visitor CHINATOWN ALICE, who says Dan was father of her child.

DOROTHY, Kate is much perturbed. A few evenings later she and her father, JUSTIN PARSONS, find near their home the unconscious victim of an auto crash.

JAMES LATHAM, and minister to him. Recovering he woos Kate. Because of Dan, though fond of Latham, she is uncertain what to say. It develops that Latham knew Dan. He takes her to a fishing shack the latter owned and they find a trunk which, however, contains no papers throwing any light on Dan's past. Determined to learn if the trunk means anything to Alice, Kate asks the latter to visit her.

GO ON WITH THE STORY.

AN early mail a few days later, brought Kate a scrawly note. She opened it eagerly. It was the answer to her own.

Alice was coming!

"I'm answering your letter right away," she wrote, because I think it is so kind of you to ask Dorothy and me to visit you."

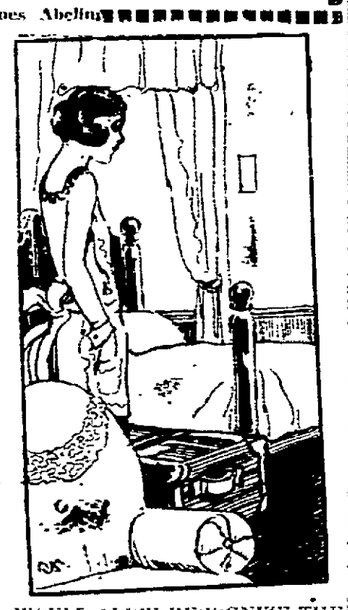

They were to arrive, Kate read, Saturday [illegible] and could remain until Sunday evening. Alice ran on about the [illegible] a visit would be for Dorothy. The letter impressed Kate as [illegible] happy. Whatever [illegible] Kate decided she was [illegible] Alice. She had been deceptive about Dorothy's illness, admittedly the thing had [illegible] by, and Kate believed that there must be some real reason [illegible] a desire for money for herself back of the deception.

When the finishing touch had been put on the room Alice and Dorothy were to occupy during their visit, Kate looked about the place. Everything was in perfect order, even the little trunk was there, just where it should be to catch the eye of anyone entering.

Kate looked at the trunk. She wondered if Alice would betray anything when she came in all the room and saw it. Would she [illegible] Had it ever been [illegible]?

Kate Ward's [illegible] trembled slightly as she adjusted [illegible] curtains at the window of her guest chamber. Then she went down stairs and attempted [illegible] the fluttering within her [illegible] to Justin and the dog [illegible] until train time neared.

"I'm [illegible] father," she asked of Justin, "to want to clear up something concerning one who is already gone" one of whom I can ask no apology and expect no retribution, no matter what I must find is the truth?"

Justin Parsons smiled.

"You wouldn't be human, my dear, if you did not try to understand the unexplained.

"But," he continued, "regardless of what you at length find is true, you would ask no apology, not even if he were living. Don't you know, Katie girl, that love never asks any apology?"

"And," Justin spoke slowly, "it might not ask an explanation—Kate."

The words came to Kate with the force of a blow. Her father had, in the last analysis, criticized her. He felt she wasn't doing the fair thing in trying to prove something she should not have been impelled to prove.

But she brushed the thought aside. She knew she never could be quite at peace until she was sure she had been the one woman in Dan's life after their marriage, or that she had not been. And what if she found that she had not? What then? After all, she never had thought of that as a possibility. Is it better to be in doubt about a loved one than to know an unpleasant truth, she wondered.

Kate looked at her watch. It was nearly train time.

To the Insuring Public Of Danville

The undersigned insurance agents desire to bring to your attention the following ruling just made by the Insurance Commissioner of Virginia:

"On and after February 1st., 1923, premiums for insurance upon life, person and property, of all kinds issued by stock and mutual insurance companies and reciprocal and inter-insurance exchange, classified generally as Life, Fire and Marine, or Miscellaneous, MUST BE PAID WITHIN SIXTY (60) DAYS FROM DATE OF ISSUE OF CONTRACT, or from date of renewal thereof. Such payments may be made either, in cash, or by note dated within the sixty day period and bearing interest from such date at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum.

Violation of this ruling, by extending credit beyond the sixty day period without interest, will be considered by this Department as REBATING, in violation of the provisions of Section 4222, Code of Virginia, 1919, and the company or agent extending such credit will be subject to the penalties set forth in Section 4223, Code of Virginia, 1919.

Companies are requested to notify all of their agents licensed in Virginia of the provisions of this ruling, and of the penalty for violation thereof, such penalty consisting of a fine of from one hundred to five hundred dollars for each offense, and revocation of license.

JOSEPH BUTTON,
Commissioner of Insurance

Regardless of our desire to extend credit to our customers, from the above you can readily see that we have no discretion in the matter but must govern ourselves accordingly. We shall greatly appreciate the co-operation of our customers in complying with this law.

LAUD SOLDIER-SENATOR FOR DEFENDING FRANCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.— Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, who on Saturday made a speech defending France and deploring what he described as the tendency of some persons in this country to forget the wartime crimes of Germany by sending "flowers to murderers," is being swamped with letters and telegrams from all parts of the country, commending him for his stand.

In the first mail this morning he received 236 letters and hundred more came in subsequent deliveries. He has received many cablegrams from Europe also.

The number of letters received by him up to tonight exceeds 1,500, and not more than a dozen were of an unfriendly nature. One man, apparently crazy, wrote that he would shoot Senator Reed if he ever meets him.

Hardly an important city or town in the East and South lacks representation in the commendatory letters.

UNDERGROUND STREAMS MAY SUPPLY POWER IN NEBRASKA CITY'S PLAN

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan., 31.—Millions of dollars worth of wasted energy will be harnessed and put to work in the vicinity of College View and Nebraska City if the plans of business men of those communities do not go a'gley.

Engineers employed by citizens of College View have reported that district is underlaid by swift subterranean streams of pure water. It is not impossible, the engineers said, to harness these underground currents and convert their energy into sufficient power to light every city and run every trolley car in the State.

STUDENT SAYS HE LIED ABOUT USING DRUGS

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Charges of Georth Roth, 18 years old, Lane Technical High school student, who shot himself early today that drugs were being peddled to students at the High School were declared to be without foundation tonight by government investigators attached to the federal anti-narcotic squad who reported to Colonel Will Gray Beach, head of the squad.

Young Roth, who shot himself at an elevated railroad station, left a note to his parents asserting that he had fired the shot because he had become a victim of drugs. Tonight, according to hospital internes, he admitted that his story was untrue. Doctors said they found no traces of drugs after examining him.

THREE PERSONS WERE KILLED IN EXPLOSION

(By The Associated Press)

MONTICELLO, Ga., Jan. 31.—Three persons, two of them white, were killed today when a sawmill boiler exploded on the plantation of Ben M. Davidson, seven miles from this city. One other man is believed to be in a dying condition and several negroes were injured. The dead:

Alvin Cargyle, 36, brother-in-law of Lawrence H. Jordan, operator of the mill. Harvey Jordan, 18, son of Mr. Jordan.

John Smith, negro fireman.

Smith was blown 100 feet away when the explosion occurred. Young Jordan's body was hurled ten feet against a log, his head being crushed.

Mr. Cargyle's body was mangled almost beyond recognition.

PREMIER ANNOUNCES HUGE SUM PAID OUT BY BRITISH IN RELIEF

LONDON, Jan. 31—Relief to former service men and others who are out of work here is to be investigated by an inter-departmental committee to remove the gaps in the existing system. The promise is today published in a reply to Mr. Bonar Law, the British Prime Minister, has given to representations from Sydney Webb, who complains of the lack of inter-departmental co-ordination at present.

Mr. Bonar Law says that no less than 151,000,000 pounds is being spent this year here in relief, "quite apart from the great amount of assistance which is being provided for the unemployed." This enormous sum includes 68,000,000 for persons, and other allowances to disabled men 27,000,000 as benefits under the health insurance scheme 44,000,000 pounds under the unemployment insurance scheme, and 12,000,000 pounds for poor law help to able-bodied unemployed.

RUN MADE ON BANK

COBLENZ, Jan. 31.—Owing to the failure of the Reischbank to deliver adequate supplies of German currency, there was a run on the bank today, which closed down during the afternoon. The mark fluctuated widely between 40,000 and 50,000 to the dollar.

WOMEN SOON TO LEAD IN POLITICS, BOSTON WOMAN LECTURER-WRITER THINKS

BOSTON, Jan., 31.— Mere man will soon be forced out as the leader in politics, according to the prediction of Ida Tarbell, lecturer and writer, in a speech at the Old South Meeting House. She declared that man will soon be compelled to share his control in politics with the members of the weaker sex.

Miss Tarbell ridiculed Congress and its tariff bills and said that a Congress of women would have done much better.

FRONT TRIMMING POPULAR

It is interesting to note how many spring models show all or nearly all of the trimming used, on the front of the gown.

Two of the frocks sketched have modifications of the jabot drapery—one in a genuine jabot of sheer fabric falling from the throat to the waistline, the other in a less usual circular panel that drops from the point of the yoke to the hem.

The third dress shows an oddly cut front panel with the jabot drapery at one side.

If your Credit is Good—Keep it so by Paying Your Bills Promptly When Due.

Credit is based on confidence—Not in the ultimate desire and abilit to pay bills, but in the willingness and ability to pay promptly when due.

What is the Credit Department of The Retail Merchants Association?

The Retail Merchants Association is composed of Business and Financial Institutions. The Association maintains a central bureau where a list of each member's customers is filed—a record of the amount of credit you have had and your reputation for paying your bills. Your credit is accessible to all members. The Association does not rate you—you make your own credit rating by your manner in paying your bills—prompt, slow or refusing to pay.

206-YEAR FIGHT WON AS MENACE OF MISSISSIPPI FLOODS IS CONQUERED

VIEW ON THE BANKS OF THE MISSISSIPPI, SHOWING THE LEVEL OF THE WATER HIGHER THAN THE SURROUNDING COUNTRY.

(Special to The Bee)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 1.—A battle of 206 years' standing between nature and man at last has been ended—and man has won!

Nature is personified by the Mississippi River, churning and gurgling in its eagerness to leap the hurdle of levees and flow forth to lay waste to the surrounding country and sweep away homes and crops.

Man is personified by the government engineers and others who have been improving the levee system. They think that after 206 years of fighting, the river at last has been subdued.

Commission Sanguine.

"River improvements are now in condition to prevent the destructive effects of floods in all but the most extreme high water," says a report of the Mississippi River Commission.

Records of the 1922 spring flood, which began in February, bear out this sanguine statement. On the lower Mississippi the flood waters were higher than at any time in recorded history, but every one of the government-constructed levees held, while only a few of the privately built embankments gave way.

Five hundred miles of country along the lower course of the river, always in imminent danger from every rise, is protected now by standardized levees.

Where the country is lower than the river bed, as in part of Arkansas and Mississippi, levees are backed up on the land side by banquettes; 20 feet wide for levees from 10 to 13 feet high. Banquettes are made five to eight feet lower than the levees they reinforce and make levees doubly strong.

Bed Growing Higher?

Another bugaboo that has beset dwellers in the valley is the belief the river is building its bed higher and higher and that some day the river will be so far above the level of surrounding land that no artificially banks can hold it.

Captain Edward N. Chisolm, of the engineering corps, secretary of the Mississippi River Commission, declares that no such thing is happening.

Bars Rum For Pies; Fears Pie-Eyed City

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—An American citizen, though a householder and of good character, cannot obtain a half pint of rum and a pint of brandy for culinary purposes, even if he posts a $1,000 bond to insure the use of the liquor solely in cooking. Judge Hand decided yesterday in Federal District Court.

Walter E. Koehler of No. 3 Centre Street, New Dorp, S. I., sought a mandatory injunction to compel Prohibition officials to let him have the liquor on these grounds.

Judge Hand, sustaining Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair's refusal, said granting of such permits would allow "strong liquor obtained for the ostensible making of pies to pour in streams down throats of thirsty topers."

Glimmer of Hope Harding Will Act In Europe's Crisis

But It's Built on Faint Basis—Hughes Is Not Sure He Can Make Trip to South America.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—In a casual reference at the White House today to the possibility of Secretary of State Hughes not being able to make his announced visit to Chili for the Pan-American conference in the event of some undisclosed development of the European situation, Washington seeks to read an expectation of another Administration venture in the direction of stabilization of Europe.

The Secretary of State has accepted conditionally the invitation of the President of Chili to be present at the opening of the conference and except for the indicated contingency plans to be gone six weeks, during which time he will also drop in on Montevideo, Buenos Aires and Lima.

The deduction is made that the Administration has the hope, at least, of a change of attitude on the part of France that would promise a welcome to some such plan as was involved in Mr. Hughes' suggestion of a conference of financial experts to determine the amount Germany could pay.

No explanation was given either at the White House of the State Department. It was merely repeated that there was no present thought of proposing a conference, as it was obvious that if the President believed such a course was capable of bearing fruit it would have been adopted long ago.

While this tenuous hope was being suggested downtown, Borah was introducing in the Senate his resolution requesting the President to call an international conference, not only to consider ways and means for the stabilization of the economic situation, which of course, involves a settlement of the reparations controversy, but also to discuss the further reduction of armaments.

There has been so much comment throughout the country on the contrast between Borah's positive effort and the Administration's do-nothing policy that the original plan of the Republican leaders to refer the resolution to a committee and let it die there has been given up as certain to provoke more criticism.

Instead they now purpose allowing it come to a vote, which they are confident will reject it. Until it is decided just how the Borah measure will be taken up, it is to lie on the table.

With the exception of using the words "adjustments or settlements," instead of "understandings or arrangements" the phraseology is identical with that offered on December 21. The resolution follows:

"That the President is authorized and requested to invite such Governments as he may deem necessary or expedient to send representatives to a conference which shall be charged with the duty of considering the economic problems now obtaining throughout the world with a view of arriving at such adjustments or settlements as may seem essential to the restoration of trade and to the establishment of sound financial and business conditions; and also to consider the subject of further limitation of armaments with a view of reaching an understanding or agreement upon said matter both by land and by sea, and particularly relative to limiting the construction of all types and sizes of sub-surface and surface craft of 10,000 tons standard displacement, or less, and of aircraft."

Immediate stock of the Borah suggestion was taken by Republican leaders. They expressed the confident belief that sentiment for a conference has not increased since the plan was pending some weeks ago. They believe the resolution now will be from five to ten votes short of adoption.

All Republican Senators have been warned to report here immediately and remain until the work of the Congress is completed. It is predicted debate on the Borah plan will not consume more than four or five days.

Republican leaders Lodges and Watson of Indiana, were at the White House today, but were unable to see the President. It was explained that these Senators desire to have some authorized statement put forth declaring there is no friction in the Cabinet and that all possible is being done to aid in settling the troubles of Europe, by suggestion. It was said the President could not be seen before Thursday or Friday.

It developed this afternoon that Borah will experience much difficulty in finding a suitable measure on which the economic conference plan may be engrafted. So far as can be seen the Ship Subsidy Bill is about the only pending measure to which it would be germane. Borah will not offer it to the Subsidy Bill because that is doomed to defeat.

If the leaders carry out their agreement to defeat the resolution on a straight-out vote no trouble will arise. Otherwise Borah must find a measure where a point of order will not lie.

Lame Duckling to Take Stump Against Own Party

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—August Buehue is one lame duckling who has definite plans laid out for the period following March 4. (A lame duckling is one whose Congressman is a lame duck and has lost his power to keep his friends in jobs.)

Buehue has been trying without cess to get a Democrat ousted to make way for him, but always another Republican landed in the vacancies. He has visited lame ducks and well ducks without encouragement.

At last Buehue (it is pronounced "Beancy") got mad. He invested $75 in a course of oratory and is going back soon among the coal miners of Southern Illinois to "orate" the Republican party out of power because Democrats still have jobs.

JAPANESE TAXED FOR TRADE BOARDS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan., 31.—Chambers of commerce in Japan are supported by a business tax provided by law and are considered an integral part of municipal organization instead of voluntary associations, as in America, according to Dr. Bunshiro Hattori, director of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of all Japan and secretary of the Tokyo Chamber of Commerce. Dr. Hattori is visiting San Francisco and other American cities for detailed studies of commercial organizations.

A graduate of Princeton University and professor of economics in Waseda University, Japan, Dr. Hattori manifests a desire to install the latest and best administrative practices and business methods of American chambers of commerce in those of Japan.

"In Japan, our method differs greatly from the American system of financing chambers of commerce," says Dr. Hattori. "The Japanese law provides that acertain portion of a business tax goes to support the chamber of commerce. In Tokyo we have 12,000 such taxpayers. These 12,000 business taxpayers elect 70 representatives, which is virtually our entire active membership. These 70 correspond to the board of directors of the American chambers of commerce."

DALLINGER

It is not always the men who are unromantic. At times the women exhibit the practical nature. I've illustrated this often in my speeches with this story:

Josephus and Samanthy were lovers. They sat under an apple tree in the early summer—the day was balmy and a soft wind blew.

"Ah, Samanthy," breathed Josephus in a rapt voice, "listen to the zephyr as it rustles gently through the branches and hear how the trees moan and sigh and sigh and moan melodiously in the breeze."

Samanthy looked up brightly into her lover's eyes.

"Well, Josephus," she remarked, "I guess if you were as full of green apples as those trees are, you'd sigh and moan and moan and sigh a lot, too."

FORDSON

You Will Want Your Fordson Tractor Early

Everything points to the greatest shortage of Ford products this year that has ever existed.

Never before has the demand been so great.

You will want a Fordson Tractor early——here is one product you cannot wait for——when the weather opens up you will need it.

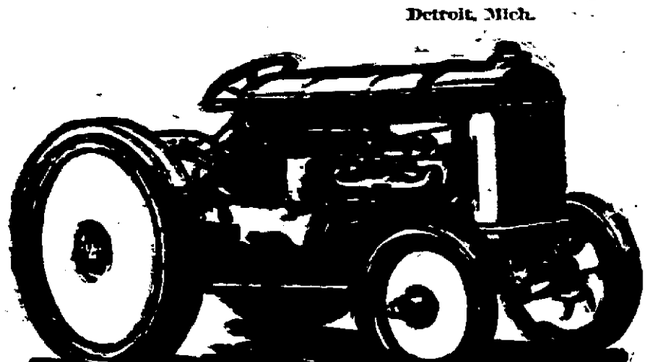

You will want it for plowing, seeding, cultivating—and all your other work. Already it has proved the greatest help to profitable farming that has ever been offered to you. And at $395.00 f. o. b. Detroit, the price is so low that you lose money every day you are without a Fordson. To get delivery you must order early.

There are no reserve stocks among our dealers——our production capacity, great as it is, will not enable us to build up a reserve.

It must be a case of "first come, first served" and the only way in which you can protect yourself is to list your order with a Ford Dealer immediately.

By taking advantage of our dealer's first opportunity to make delivery, you will be assured of having your Fordson when you need it.
